PERKINS' LABOR STAND STIRS UP OFFICIAL STORM

Ship Bill Opposition Angers Kennedy.

Reveal C. I. O. as Red

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—With the development of a rounded national defense jeopardized by employment chaos in the American merchant marine Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' espousal of the maritime union's opposition to the proposed remedial legislation has stirred up a storm that is shaking the President's official family.

President Roosevelt.

Miss Perkins, appearing before the senate commerce committee, ranged herself with Ralph Emerson of the C. I. O. affiliated maritime union in condemnation of the United States maritime commission's proposal to settle labor disputes in the merchant marine by the mediation methods successfully employed on the railroads. Active champion of the mediation bill is Joseph P. Kennedy, who is retiring from the chairmanship of the maritime commission to be ambassador to Great Britain.

Assumes Defiant Stand.

Emerson defied congress to pass the bill to apply the principles of railway mediation to the merchant marine. He said the union would not obey the law if it was enacted, adding that "there are not enough Kennedys to man the ships."

Secretary Perkins' undertaking to defeat the maritime commission's bill angered Chairman Kennedy. He burned up the wires from Palm Beach, where he is vacationing, with incandescent protests to the White House against administration scuttling of administration legislation.

Mr. Kennedy is reported to be on his way to Washington to demand a showdown at the White House between him and Secretary Perkins. He insists that the President shall declare whether he upholds Chairman Kennedy or Secretary Perkins. If the President should side with Miss Perkins, Mr. Kennedy, according to his friends here, may be expected to quit the administration cold and throw up the appointment to the court of St. James's. If the President should uphold Chairman Kennedy, Miss Perkins would be expected to tender her resignation.

Kennedy May Delay Departure.

From his long distance telephone utterances it was gathered that Mr. Kennedy is seriously considering in any event the postponement of his departure for London in order to further the legislation designed to restore order and discipline in the merchant marine.

According to the maritime commission's recent report and to testimony before the senate committee on strikes, insubordination of crews and incompetence of shiphands render extremely questionable the success of the undertaking to build up a new merchant marine by government subsidy. Mr. Kennedy pronounced it unwise to proceed with the ship building program unless the chaotic conditions were remedied.

Miss Perkins is fighting the mediation bill on the ground that it involves compulsory arbitration. Mr. Kennedy denies the charge. He points out that the pending bill is modeled on the mediation act applying to the railroads. Under the terms of the railroad act the national mediation board offers mediation whenever a dispute between a railroad and its employés occurs.

Way Open to Strike.

If mediation is accepted by both sides the dispute invariably is adjusted. If mediation is refused the President may appoint a board to in-

Auto Smashes Into Crowd; 2 Killed

THREE INJURED AT 35TH ST. AND WESTERN AVE.

Driver Is Held After Tree Stops Car.

Speeding at an estimated 60 miles an hour down Western avenue, a suburban motorist plowed his automobile into a group of men and women waiting for a street car at 35th street last night. He continued on across the intersection until he lost control of his machine and crashed into a tree. He left two victims dead behind him and also three others injured.

James V. Vallera.

Those killed were Albert Doran, 45 years old, 2450 West 60th street, manager of a loop grill, and his wife, Isabelle, 40, dietitian at the County hospital.

Another Victim May Die.

The injured, taken to St. Anthony's hospital, are Felix Szlaius, 26 years old, 4245 South Maplewood avenue, a baker; his wife, Vera, 22, and Nathaniel Daniels, 34, colored, of 519 East 34th place. Mrs. Szlaius suffered a skull fracture and may die. Her husband also is criticaly injured. Daniels' right leg was fractured.

The driver, who escaped injury, was James V. Vallera, 24 years old, 4659 West 95th street, Oak Lawn, a factory employé. He was seized in his car by Motorcycle Policeman Joseph Mitchell, who saw the accident. Vallera admitted, police said, that he had had a few drinks.

One Thrown Fifty Feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Doran, Mr. and Mrs. Szlaius, and Daniels were on the northwest corner of Western avenue and 35th street waiting for a southbound car when Vallera raced toward them. A street car also approached. Near the intersection Vallera forged ahead, and at that moment the five men and women stepped off the curb.

They had no chance to escape. Vallera's car plowed into them. Doran was hurled fifty feet. Vallera's car went out of control, crossed southeast across Western avenue, and came to a stop against a tree.

Questioned at the Brighton Park station by Lieut. Maurice Wall, Vallera said, "I was trying to beat the street car." He was examined by Police Physician Frederick C. Hanmore, who said chemical tests indicated he was "slightly intoxicated."

Dies of Crash Injuries.

Ross B. Guthrie, 55 years old, 2034 North Laporte avenue, died last night in St. Anne's hospital of injuries suffered early yesterday morning when he drove his automobile head on into a Cicero avenue street car near Potomac avenue. Police said he had apparently lost control of his car. About fifteen passengers in the street car were severely jolted by the crash.

Albert Tibbits, 53 years old, 6234 Ingleside avenue, died last night in the Evangelical hospital supposedly of injuries received in an automobile accident on Wednesday night. He was brushed by a car driven by Horace Sales, 54 years old, 6364 Ingleside avenue. Medical examination at the time indicated he was not hurt, police say.

Samuel Levy, 65 years old 3250 Division street, a tailor, was killed last night when struck by an automobile while crossing Division street at Kedzie avenue. Police held the driver, Herbert Hoffman, 25 years old, 1109 North Harding avenue, a bank clerk.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Ethel Pullman, 41 years old, 6857 Ridgeland avenue, died yesterday in Jackson Park hospital of a skull fracture incurred last Tuesday when she was struck by a Greyhound bus on Stony Island avenue at 69th street. The driver, Calvin Dahneke, is to face a charge of reckless driving in Safety court March 14.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 109 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these, 89 had been killed in Chicago, where 1,747 persons had been injured in the same period.

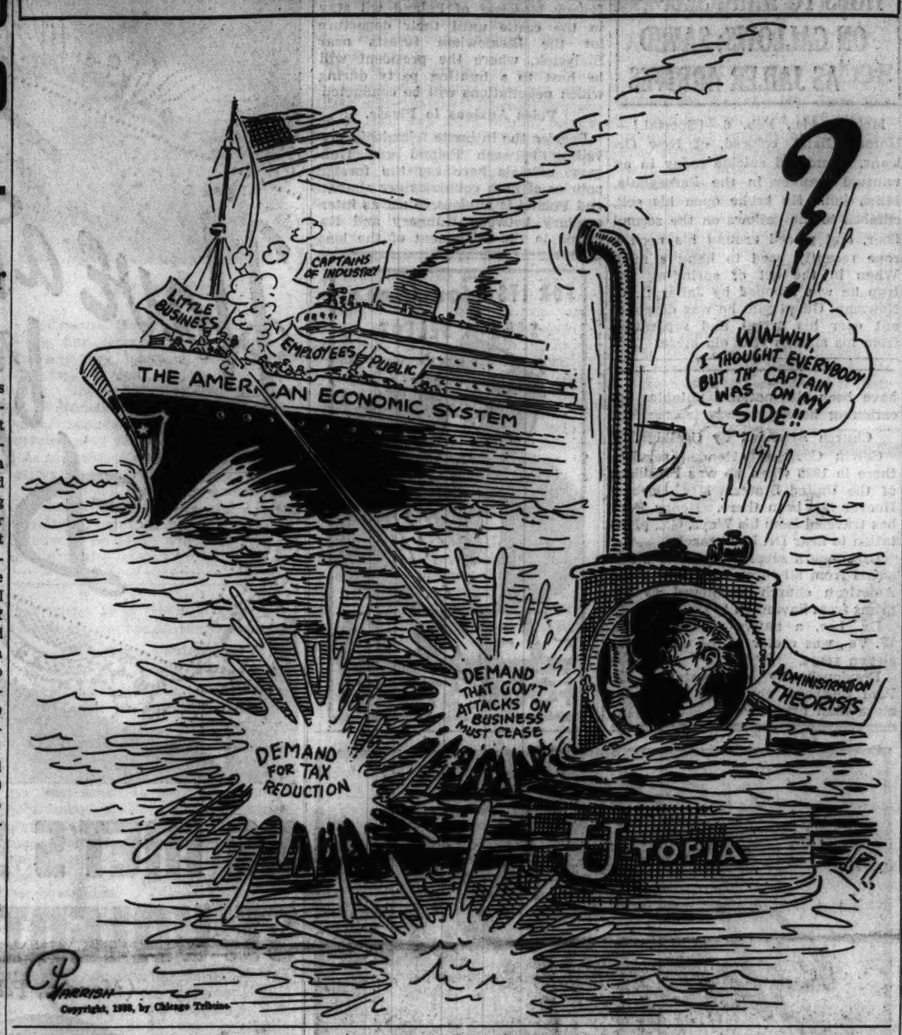
RETURNING THE FIRE!



Boy Quits Girl; Police Get In on the Windup

BY MARCIA WINN.

Edmund V. Bucher Jr., who is 21 years old and very much in love, had been gone from the home of his girl friend about five minutes yesterday morning when she realized the shattering significance of his final words, flung at her in a lovers' quarrel.

Running to the phone, she called his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Bucher, 6242 South Albany avenue.

"Hurry!" she cried. "You'd better get down to Edmund's office. He's going to commit suicide."

Gets Into a Cab.

Mrs. Bucher, aghast, flung herself into a cab and sped toward the loop and the fifth floor of 17 North Wabash avenue. Edmund has a watch repairing shop there.

As Mrs. Bucher neared Garfield boulevard and Damen avenue she spied Policeman Richard Dorsey of the south park police in a squad car. With few words and many tears she explained to him that she was racing downtown to prevent her son's suicide. Please, couldn't he do something?

Policeman Dorsey could. He drove swiftly to the New City police station and notified the Central police of the impending tragedy. From there four policemen in squad car and police wagon rushed to 17 North Wabash avenue.

Find Shop Closed.

The mother and police arrived at the same time. The police hurried to the fifth floor. Mrs. Bucher waited below. But on the fifth floor nothing was amiss, so the policemen came on down.

But back on the street a shrill cry of joy from some fifty feet away attracted their attention. It was Mrs. Bucher, her arms around the neck of a tall, grinning youth. It was Edmund.

"What's this about suicide?" the police asked.

"Gee, you got me," Edmund said. "Whose?"

"Yours," they told him.

"Not I," said Edmund. "I've been down winding up the watches. I have to every Sunday to check them by the master clock to see they're keeping the right time."

"But why," they demanded, "did you tell your girl you were going to kill yourself?"

"O, gee!" protested Edmund. "I didn't say that at all. All I remember saying when I left her was, 'I'm going down to wind up everything.'"

And, he added, he did.

A LITTLE GIRL INFORMS THE PRESS THAT ALL'S WELL WITH THE WORLD

"I saw a robin today," a little girl telephoned last night.

"Where?"

"In a tree at 5200 Kenmore avenue."

"Who are you?"

"Joan Patterson of 5243 Kenmore avenue. I'm 13."

"What was the robin doing, Joan?"

"Singing."

TRUSTING WIDOW FINDS FORTUNE IS ONLY PAPER

For three weeks a widow of 55 had lived in the pleasant confidence that one tin box in her home contained $47,000 left by a trusting stranger, and the one beside it held her own $4,000.

She looked in both boxes yesterday, after reading that Mrs. Jeannette Tietcen of 871 East 63d street had been swindled out of $2,043 by men whose descriptions were identical to those of the trusting stranger and his friend. The boxes contained nothing but strips of newspaper.

The second victim is Mrs. Anna Atradovec of 3615 West Cermak road. The trusting stranger said he had inherited the $47,000. He was looking for an honest person to guard it.

OUR DOUGHBOYS IN CHINA SORE; TO LOSE VALETS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Whatever the reaction in the United States, Japan and China to the withdrawal of the 15th American infantry from North China, some one is going to be sore, good and sore—the doughboy of the 15th.

Army men chuckled here today as they told of the colorful life of ease of the doughboy in China.

They said each enlisted man had a servant there, a rickshaw boy to whom he paid $2 to $3 a month.

No shining of shoes and boots or polishing of brass or sewing on of buttons or cleaning of rifles for the doughboy of the 15th. Leave that to the rickshaw boy.

Battle to Plug Dike Leak in Suburban Lake

Twenty-five men were battling early today to stop a leak in a dike that threatened to let Orville Caesar's artificial lake wash out state route 63 a mile southwest of Barrington. State highway policemen closed the road for the protection of motorists.

Romeo Capulli narrowly escaped death as he directed the fight to save the dike when he lost his balance and fell from the top into 20 feet of water. He was sucked through the hole in the dike through which the lake was leaking, whirled through 50 feet of water, and then thrown out, badly bruised, between the dike and the road. Capulli said he held his breath the entire time.

Dike 2,000 Feet Long.

Caesar, president of the Greyhound Management company, has been building the 80 acre artificial lake on his 200 acre estate for some time. The dike, 2,000 feet long, is wide enough for a roadway he expects to build along the lake.

Last evening the great earthen dike sprang a leak. Capulli and Herbert Walbaum, Barrington contractors who built the dike, raced to the scene with a crew of men and began plugging the hole with sandbags. But the hole kept getting larger, and water spilled upon the state highway.

Four Spillways Opened.

The four spillways were then opened in the hope that water could be let out of the lake fast enough to relieve the pressure. It was through one of these spillways Capulli was drawn.

The dike, 20 feet high, is one of the sights of the Barrington region. Completion of the lake has been expected to make the bus executive's estate a showplace.

He bought the estate in 1935 from Russell A. Pettingill, for $75,000.

Wears Out Two Bibles in Serving One Church

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The Rev. Emanuel Mayer has worn out two Bibles in the forty years he has been pastor of Zion Lutheran church. Today his congregation marked his anniversary by presenting him with a new one. The Rev. Mr. Mayer has missed only two Sundays in his pulpit since he came to the church as a youth of 19. Both times he was absent because of illness. His parents were married at the altar of this church.

Mystery Shot Fired as He Pens Sermon

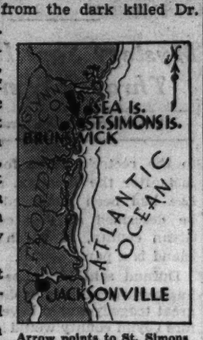
St. Simons Island, Ga., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A bullet from the dark killed Dr. Charles H. Lee, 71 years old, rector of historic Christ church [Episcopal], as he sat preparing a sermon in his rectory last night.



Arrow points to St. Simons Island.

The text on the paper found clutched in his hand read, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed do all in the name Lord, Jesus." It was based on the words of St. Paul.

Unable to Find Motive.

Coroner J. D. Baldwin who investigated the slaying of the distinguished rector, a second cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee, said he was unable to discover a motive, although friends of the minister said he had expressed concern over growing vice conditions in his county and had predicted a tragedy.

Dr. Lee's wife found the body of her husband upright in their living room shortly before midnight, a bullet through the temple. She said it apparently was the second of two bullets fired into the rectory through a window within half an hour.

Explaining that both she and Dr. Lee suffered slightly from deafness, Mrs. Lee told a coroner's jury they previously heard an explosion they attributed to the backfiring of a motor car. They did not notice that a bullet smashed through the glass of the window.

Wife Hears Second Shot.

Then Mrs. Lee retired, and the second bullet, apparently fired from the same position outside the house, struck her husband. Hearing the second shot, she said, she returned to the living room to find her husband dead.

The first bullet passed within 6 inches of Dr. Lee's head, police said. They found two .38 caliber bullets in the house, one of lead and the other copper jacketed. The bullet holes were 6 inches apart both in the outside screen and the window pane.

Dr. E. H. Egbert, a physician summoned for Dr. Lee, said the bullet which killed the rector went through his head and through the walls of two rooms.

An Outspoken Individual.

"I can't imagine why any one would want to kill him," said Dr. Egbert, who had been Dr. Lee's physician for many years, "unless he had found out some one was not living straight. He was very outspoken to individuals, and insisted that every one around him live right."

G. C. Durand, head master of Sea Island school and one of those called HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Gen. Fidel Davila's lower Aragon army has rolled government forces back along a 25 mile front north of Teruel, insurgents reported, and tonight threatened a drive to the sea which would split Valencia off from Catalonia.

The surprise offensive, described in insurgent advices as one of the "most brilliant" operations of the civil war, appeared to have averted the government's attempt to knife through the insurgents' lower Aragon supply line, the Teruel-Calamocha road. The attackers captured the town of Pancrudo, about 30 miles north of Teruel, and asserted the victory gave Davila control of communications throughout the Alfambra river valley.

The government, meanwhile, attacked in the Muela de Teruel sector west of Teruel and reported capture of a position known as "Hill 1040" which Barcelona advices said "dominates the entire region" on that side of the provincial capital.

Capture Forty Positions.

The insurgents started their big push yesterday, and before nightfall, they had driven through the Palomera mountains, the old government barrier, and claimed 230 square miles as new insurgent territory.

The Sierra Palomera positions, flanking the Teruel-Calamocha highway to its east, had been the base of fierce assaults which a week ago threatened to cut the only communications between insurgent upper Aragon and insurgent forces half circling Teruel.

Davila, who directed the offensive, was the commander who conquered the Biscayan territory of northwest Spain for Generalissimo Francisco Franco. He was made minister of war in the new Franco cabinet last week.

Sixteen villages and forty other positions that had been held by the Barcelona troops for weeks following their capture of insurgent Teruel Dec. 21 fell to the insurgents.

The defenders were taken by surprise, the insurgents said, and retreated through the rough terrain, leaving many dead after a brief resistance. More than 500 prisoners were reported taken.

Trap Loyalist Units.

Several government units were trapped on Palomera peaks by the swiftly encircling insurgents. The immediate objective of the attackers appeared to be Alfambra about 15 miles north and slightly west of Teruel.

From there the insurgents would face a 60 mile march through rough country to the eastern Mediterranean coast or might swing down the Alfambra river valley, skirt Teruel and attempt to cut the main highway southeast to Sagunto and Valencia.

Government advices acknowledged only that the insurgents had attacked. They also told of artillery and air assaults on newly captured positions from which the government threatened ancient Granada in southern Spain, but declared they were ineffective. Two attacking planes were brought down, they reported.

ACT TO END PIRACY

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Britain tonight struck back at Fascist forces in the Mediterranean and warned Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader, that unless full compensation is given for shipping losses the British will seize a corresponding value in rebel property. France and Italy may follow suit.

[Great Britain lost two merchant ships in Spanish waters last week. The Endymion was torpedoed off Cartagena with a loss of ten lives and the Alcira was sunk by rebel bombing planes off Barcelona. Both Britain and France immediately reinforced their Mediterranean patrols.]

The movements of British warships on patrol duty will be kept secret from now on, the admiralty stated tonight. As at the time of the Ethiopian crisis two years ago, the British have decided it is best to conceal the whereabouts of their vessels. Mediterranean areas in which "pirate" submarines are believed to be cruising will be treated as war zones.

Patrol Balearic Islands.

The stiff note to Gen. Franco was drawn up at yesterday's meeting in London of British ministers, and informs him that drastic new orders have been issued to the warships to end piracy. The patrol areas in the western basin of the Mediterranean have been widened to throw a vast anti-submarine net around the Balearic islands, where Gen. Franco has a base.

The combined force of British and French destroyers has been increased from sixty to seventy, of which forty-five are British. Guns are kept manned for instant action, and any submerged submarines found in the patroled zones are to be attacked without question.

To combat the air menace, two British cruisers armed with heavy anti-aircraft batteries, have joined the Balearic patrol, it is understood, and the British seaplane force operating off the Algerian coast, has been reinforced.

Move to Foil Spies.

The shrouding of the naval movements with war time secrecy is aimed, the British say, at preventing Franco spies in Mediterranean ports from getting information on the whereabouts of the warships. The steamer Endymion was believed to have been a victim of the espionage system, which enabled the captain of the submarine to dodge the patrol warships.

In the future, it is understood, warship "beats" will be changed daily. All British patrol ships are fully outfitted with depth charges and the latest submarine detection equipment.

REBEL ARMY CRACKS TERUEL DEFENSE

The Spanish insurgents yesterday claimed capture of forty positions on a 25 mile front after a surprise attack north of Teruel. The victory gives them dominance of the Alfambra valley and renews the threat of a march to the sea, 60 miles away. The loyalists claimed to have taken strategic "Hill 1040" in the La Muela de Teruel sector.

"MISS X." TO TELL MORE OF BRITISH SPY HUNT TODAY

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The story of a beautiful, blonde, and anonymous British secret agent—how she trailed a spy suspect for three years and finally trapped him and three men accused as accomplices with official war department documents—will be continued tomorrow in Bow Street court.

Last Thursday, in a preliminary hearing, she appeared against P. E. Glading, a former employé of the large Woolwich arsenal, and three arsenal workers accused of copying blueprints of army, navy, and air force weapons with the alleged intention of delivering them to an unidentified foreign power.

"Miss X" testified that for nearly a year she had helped copy British armament plans smuggled out of the Woolwich arsenal, having gained the confidence of the alleged spies. She related she had entered the British war office's counterespionage service in 1931, doing volunteer work in an organization of "friends of the soviet union." In 1934, she testified, she met Glading and a year ago rented a London flat under his direction and learned photographic copying.

AGUINALDO WILL COME TO U. S. FOR FREEDOM PLEA

MANILA, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Association of Veterans of the Philippine Revolution today approved a proposed trip by their leader, Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, to the United States later this year to ask the Washington government for immediate and complete independence.

After electing Aguinaldo president of the association the veterans voted to suggest reciprocal trade relations between the United States and the Philippines for at least ten years after independence, but reiterated their desire for complete freedom even if such relations were not realized.

Aguinaldo, who led the Filipinos in a revolt against United States authority shortly after the Spanish-American war, again voiced his opposition to the present commonwealth status for his country.

RECTOR IS SLAIN WHILE WRITING SERMON IN HOME

Mystery Shot Is Fired Through Window.

to the rector's house for assistance just after the shooting, asserted Dr. Lee had been disturbed over what he described as vice conditions in Glynn county, of which St. Simons island is a part.

Durand said Mrs. Lee quoted her husband recently as saying that some great tragedy would have to occur before Glynn county would have law and order.

"This," added Durand, "looks like the tragedy. There are many dives being operated on the island which Dr. Lee, myself, and others have been moving to have cleaned out."

Writing When Slain.

Dr. Lee, a powerfully built man more than 6 feet tall, was seated on a davenport in the living room writing when he was slain. He was facing the window.

Police Chief L. O. Godwin said no motive had been established and no arrest was imminent.

He said a servant was questioned, but had provided a satisfactory account of his whereabouts.

The rectory is 200 yards from any other building on St. Simons, which is one of six islands off the southern coast of Georgia. The island is heavily wooded, thinly populated, and laced with thickets and marshes. A causeway connects it with the mainland and with Sea Island, a resort developed by the late Howard Coffin, an industrial leader.

Prayer Service Conducted.

As the coroner's jury and police continued the search for clews, a lay leader held a simple prayer service at the church to keep unbroken the chain of Sabbath messages begun 200 years ago on this spot by John Wesley, the founder of Methodism.

Christ church itself is closely connected with the early history of Methodism. Wesley and his brother, Charles, the hymn writer, both preached under Wesley's Oak on St. Simons and in a little chapel they built on the site of what is now Christ church. Wesley, who never gave up his orders as a priest of the Church of England, came to the island in 1735, two years after the settlement of Georgia was begun by Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe. His brother, Charles, was Oglethorpe's secretary at the time the general founded Fort Frederica on the island.

Descendants of the settlers who came to Georgia with Oglethorpe still live in the islands and marshes that extend along the coast. Many of them are fishermen and hunters.

Christ church is the chief Protestant church on St. Simons Island. Many members of its congregation have been the nation's notables vacationing here.

Church Attended by Coolidge.

Calvin Coolidge attended services there in 1929 when he was President of the United States. Mrs. Herbert Hoover has been there. Henry Ford has traveled from his Ways, Ga., plantation to hear Dr. Lee preach.

Last month several thousand Methodists from all three branches of the American church journeyed as pilgrims from Savannah to the church.

Dr. Lee, a native of Charleston, W. Va., was rector of the church for eleven years.

Previously he was pastor at St. Paul Episcopal church at Macon for more than fifteen years.

TRIES TO HANG SELF ON GALLOWS; SAVED AS JAILER ARRIVES

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Horace Gland, colored, of New Orleans, attempted suicide today in an unusual manner in the Pascagoula, Miss., jail. He broke open his cell, climbed to the gallows on the second floor, and placed around his neck a rope recently used to hang a man. When in the act of springing the trap he was stopped by Jailer D. O. Newman. Gland said he was despondent over his arrest and separation from his sixteen year old bride.

HUNGARIAN AND POLISH LEADERS EYE NAZI PLANS

Seek to Block German Moves in Austria.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Feb. 6.—Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, who was received with special honors when he arrived yesterday in Poland's ancient capital, Cracow, was a guest today at Wajel castle. The castle is looked at as one of Poland's historic shrines, symbolizing a period when the destinies of Poland and Hungary were linked even closer than today.

Both Admiral Horthy and President Ignacy Moscicki of Poland wil stay in the castle until their departure for the Bialystok, where the president will be host to a hunting party during which negotiations will be conducted.

Poles Anxious to Please.

Besides the intimate friendship prevailing between Poland and Hungary, officials here say the foreign policies of both countries are similar, and Poland is anxious to act as intermediary between Hungary and Rumania in the settlement of the long standing quarrel about Rumania's treatment of her Magyar minority.

Although no agreement is expected to be signed, according to the Poles, the visit of Admiral Horthy emphasizes that neither country wishes the realization of an accord between Austria and Germany and both will continue to oppose the dividing of Europe into ideological blocs. Germany's ambitions in the Danube basin will also be discussed by the party, whose members favor economic but not military collaboration with Germany.

Fear German Plans.

The privacy of the Bialowieza hunting lodge enable Moscicki and Foreign Minister Josef Beck to hold many important diplomatic conferences far from press observation.

Sensational changes in the German government have increased anxiety among many leaders who fear that Germany is preparing herself for military action. The foreign office, however, still expects Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, now the general field marshal of the German army, to visit Poland on Feb. 11.

TAKE BARCELONA CIVILIANS AWAY, INSURGENTS URGE

IRUN, Spain, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent régime at Salamanca has proposed establishment of an international commission to evacuate the civil population of Barcelona to prevent death and injury to "innocent" residents of the temporary Spanish government capital. [At least 600 persons have been killed in air raids on Barcelona in the last five weeks.]

The insurgents suggested civilians be removed to nearby villages which Generalissimo Francisco Franco's bombers would respect as neutral. Barcelona, the insurgents asserted, contains "more than 180 military objectives."

The note proposed the commission inspect the "neutral zone" after its establishment.

HITLER CHOOSES NEW ENVOYS FOR FOUR KEY POSTS

Serve at Rome, Tokio, Vienna and London.

Royalist Plot Nipped?

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Back of the recent political upheaval in Germany was a monarchist plot, says a dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, published here today by the newspaper Temps.

This version of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "reorganization" of the third reich singles out Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, the new head of the armed forces, as the victor at a moment when a clash between the army and the Gestapo [secret police] appeared unavoidable.

Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo, it was said, took the offensive against the army and revealed to Hitler information he claimed to possess that a large number of generals, staf officers, and soldiers belonged to a secret organization whose aim was the restoration of the monarchy and elevation of the former kaiser's second son [Prince Eitel Friedrich] to the throne.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 6. — Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's reshuffle of Germany's diplomatic corps, announced in connection with his assumption of full control of the German army, took concrete form today.

It was learned authoritatively that Dr. Eberhard von Stohrer, ambassador to Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel régime at Salamanca, Spain, will go to London, replacing Joachim von Ribbentrop, who was made new foreign minister in the shakeup. Von Stohrer once served as minister to Egypt.

Count Friedrich von der Schulenburg, ambassador to Moscow, will, it was learned, become ambassador to Tokio, replacing Dr. Herbert von Dircksen. It was significantly noted that the Moscow post thus vacated will not be filled.

New Men for Austria and Rome.

Lieut. Col. H. Kriebel, consul general at Shanghai, has been named to succeed Franz von Papen as ambassador to Austria, and Dr. Hans Frank, commissary in the ministry of justice, will become ambassador to Rome, succeeding Ulrich von Hassell, who was recalled.

Traveling throughout the night by special train Hitler arrived today at his Alpine home near Berchtesgaden, Bavaria, where he will remain for ten days before returning to Berlin to prepare for a meeting of the reichstag on Feb. 20. Accompanying Der Fuehrer was Dr. Theo Morell, his friend and medical adviser. Dr. Morell has been telling his friends that Hitler is in the best of health, despite all rumors to the contrary.

Gather for Conference.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—(AP)—In his mountain retreat in Bavaria, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is planning his next move in a Europe already buzzing with conjectures as to what that move will be.

Members of his immediate entourage flew south to Berchtesgaden at noon today. Joachim von Ribbentrop, personal envoy of Hitler who was made foreign minister, and Franz von Papen, recalled as ambassador to Austria, were reported to be at Berchtesgaden.

Official quarters warned, however, against assuming that "anything sensational" was afoot.

Behind him in Berlin, Hitler left diplomats considering seriously the significance of Friday's cabinet shakeup. The first formal indication was not expected until the reichstag meets Feb. 20. The German parliament frequently has been the sounding board Hitler uses to make his most dramatic and important pronouncements.

Fear Program of Conquest.

There were widely differing opinions on what the next step would be.

At one extreme was the fear that Hitler—with power concentrated in his own hands—was about to snap his fingers at France and Britain and launch Germany on a career of conquests rivaling those of his allies, Italy in Africa and Japan in Asia.

At the other extreme were those who saw the shakeup as the first step toward abandonment by Hitler of the Rome-Berlin axis in favor of a grand reconciliation with France and Britain. In this version Hitler plays the rôle of Europe's prodigal son, receiving as his fatted calf the long demanded return of Germany's war lost colonies.

Scornful laughter is the Nazi reaction to both of these interpretations.

"Policy of Peace" Continues.

Government spokesmen emphasized that Hitler "repeatedly and clearly" had pointed out the trend of Germany's foreign policy. They insisted Hitler's "policy of peace" had not been changed by last week's shakeup.

Nevertheless, there was widespread expectation that Hitler would renew his drive for a better understanding with Britain and, through Britain, France.

This, in the opinion of more than one seasoned diplomat, does not mean Hitler will "betray" Premier Mussolini of Italy any more than it means England will "betray" France.

It means, rather, that Hitler is steering in the direction of a four power understanding — Britain, France, Germany, and Italy—such as Mussolini himself has advocated from time to time.

Look for Others' Sacrifices.

It is certain that the Japanese war against China has awakened the hope of some Nazis that Britain and France, with their large interests in the Orient, may be more in the mood to make sacrifices in the cause of European solidarity than they were six months or a year ago.

In any case many Nazis believe the Japanese threat in the orient might make Britain willing to buy European peace with colonies for Germany.

What Germany really wants, of course, and what her leading spokesmen never cease demanding, is colonies.

And what neither Germany nor Italy wants is further crystallization of the tendency towards divisions of the world into opposing blocs, especially if there is any chance the United States would be lined up with the democracies.

In other words, what many observers here see in the offing is not the collapse of Italian and German friendship but rather another attempt to build a four power understanding strong enough to function as a foundation for European peace.

Romance Ended

FAY WRAY.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Fay Wray, film actress, said tonight that she and her husband, John Monk Saunders, screen writer, had separated. She added that they had not yet "discussed the question of divorce." Saunders and Miss Wray were married nine years ago.

At his cottage, where he customarily retires when working, Saunders said: "This news comes as a complete surprise to me. My wife and I have been living together quite happily and I know of no cause why either of us should desire a divorce."

Bavarian Bishops Protest Nazi Dissolution of C.Y.O.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Catholic bishops throughout Bavaria today protested from their pulpits against the German secret police's recent dissolution of Catholic youth organizations in Bavaria and the Palatinate, and confiscation of their property. The bishops said they could not recognize the police action because it violated the Vatican-Berlin concordat affirming the right of the German Catholic church to religious freedom.

FEAR NAZI PRESSURE WILL HIT NIEMOELLER IN SECRET TRIAL TODAY

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The outlook for the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] pastor, who goes to trial before an emergency court here tomorrow charged with sedition, is very bad. Political events of the last three days have notably weakened his position as an opponent of the totalitarian régime. It is reported that pressure from above on the court is intense.

The idea is to keep the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller silent. He can, of course, receive an order from the secret political police to be silent if he is released, but it is not likely he would obey, as he has constantly preached to his followers it is now necessary "to obey God before man."

It is understood the authorities believe the effect of a heavy sentence after a secret trial would be less dangerous than the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller's reappearance in the pulpit.

ICE JAM PERILS RED SCIENTISTS ADRIFT ON FLOE

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Four Russian scientists reported they were in extreme peril tonight as they frantically strove to prevent the tiny floe bearing their north pole weather observation camp from being crushed in an ice jam. The jam was caused by the ice field sweeping in against the east coast of Greenland, 75 miles west of the scientific party.

Commander Ivan Papanin, in charge of the group, radioed the Arctic ice all around them was piling up, breaking into small pieces and shifting rapidly. The campers reported they had hastily placed all their equipment on sleds for a life and death race to a safer spot if their 100 by 160 foot is crushed.

CHINA STOCKS UP ENOUGH ARMS FOR YEAR OF FIGHTING

Munitions Moved Despite Jap Air Bombings.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Munitions sufficient to supply Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese armies for another year of war against Japan were reported today to have been transported from British Hongkong to Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The shipments were completed in the face of desperate Japanese efforts to crack the principal supply link between the British crown colony on the South China coast and Hankow—the Canton-Hankow railway.

The railway has been the target of daily aerial bombardments. Canton, about eighty miles northwest of Hongkong at the head of the broad estuary of the Canton [Pearl] river, had been the principal relay point for the munitions cargoes.

Jap Air Force Active.

Hankow lies about 500 miles farther north, an inland base for the Chinese defense which was reported yielding on the two-sided Lunghai railway front of east central China.

The Japanese reported their air force was active over a large area of South China, attacking much of Kwangtung province of which Canton is the capital. Japanese planes bombed and machine gunned "everything of a military nature," including airfields, supply depots, defense works and trains, it was reported.

The Hongkong correspondent of the North China Daily News said customs officials had estimated the extent of the munitions shipments recently completed.

Bought of Czechoslovakia.

The cargoes were said to have been shipped to Hongkong from Czechoslovakia on orders placed last summer by Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese finance minister and president [premier] of the executive council on an arms-buying tour of Europe.

The Japanese drive from both north and south toward Suchow, heart of the Chinese defenses on the Lunghai railway front, gained momentum after southern columns battled their way across the Hwai river, about ninety miles from their goal.

A Japanese spokesman said tonight that the last twenty-four hours had brought severe defeats for the Chinese, forcing them into demoralized retreat north from the Hwai.

He said one "crushing defeat" on the north bank of the stream had cost the defenders an estimated 1,500 dead and many wounded.

LABOR BLOCKS SNEED IN RACE FOR U. S. SENATE

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Early arrivals for the Republican state ticket conference here tomorrow expressed the opinion that the high pressure effort to bring about an indorsement of William J. Sneed of the United Mine Workers as a candidate for the United States senate had come to a standstill.

"I'm convinced," said Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county central committee, who will preside at the meeting, "that there will be no indorsement of former State Senator Sneed of Marion. Many responsible labor leaders have asked me to oppose the proposal."

The meeting is being attended by Republican county chairmen and members of the state central committee.

JAPAN DEFIES U.S.; WON'T TELL BIG NAVY PLANS

Officials Decide Secrecy Will Be Maintained.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 7 [Monday].—The Japanese navy definitly decided this morning to refuse the Anglo-American request that it reveal naval building plans. Formal approval of the decision will be given today by the premier, the foreign minister, and the navy minister.

The decision, reached in a conference of the highest naval officials, is based on the fact that the Japanese naval program, which is already firmly fixed, does not menace any country and is of a defensive nature, it was said. Consequently the navy does not recognize the need to notify foreign powers of its plans.

If a naval race starts as a result Japan cannot assume responsibility, it was declared. Furthermore, it was pointed out that Britain and America are not in a position to put the blame on Japan, inasmuch as two years ago Britain, the United States, and France declined a Japanese request to set a maximum tonnage limit.

Japan's Own Affair.

What Japan is telling England and America, in effect, although not in these words, is "You mind your own business and I'll mind mine."

The two powers—Japan's only naval superiors—in identical notes presented Saturday demanded that Japan make known by Feb. 20 any plans to build battleships of 43,000 and 46,000 tons, exceeding the 35,000 ton limit set by the 1936 London naval treaty.

Japan's failure to give assurances she would adhere until Jan. 1, 1943, to terms of the treaty she previously refused to sign, the notes said, would force the United States and Great Britain to invoke clauses of the treaty permitting them to compete with any other power.

Received with Displeasure.

The three power inquiry as to Japan's naval plans was received with obvious displeasure in both naval and diplomatic circles. It was pointed out that Japan is not bound by treaty to limit the size of warships or is in any way under obligation to exchange building plans with any nation.

How to foil the "CEMENT AGE"

Save money and get Foot Comfort

by buying Arch Preserver Shoes this month

This is a cement age, requiring hours of walking and standing on hard surfaces. Naturally, therefore, many men have trouble with tired, aching feet—even though there is nothing fundamentally wrong with the feet themselves.

We aren't "foot doctors" and do not prescribe for feet that need the attention of a doctor. But we do say that we can relieve ordinary foot distress due to improperly fitted shoes.

Field Arch Preserver Shoes are constructed to help you walk and stand in the way nature intended you to. They keep good feet strong and healthy and they support weakened feet. Fitted by our trained salesmen, they bring you foot comfort and foot happiness, as many of our regular customers can testify.

All Arch Preservers are reduced in price this month as part of our February Sale of Shoes. That means it's a good time for you to get acquainted with them—and that's why we say—"you can buy foot comfort at reduced prices this month!"

Regular customers, too, will appreciate the savings that can be made by buying an extra pair during this sale.

HORNER FORCES WILL FOCUS ON JARECKI ISSUE

War Council Maps Drive for Cook County.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Leaders of the Horner-Courtney alliance of Democrats met in secret war council for four hours yesterday and adopted plans to carry their vote attack to the Cook county organization headed by National Committeeman P. A. Nash, hammering away throughout Chicago and its suburbs.

Gov. Horner called around him in his suite in the Congress hotel the general staf that guided his primary fight in 1936. Talking behind doors closed to other visitors, they determined to base their assault on the issue brought into the Cook county situation unexpectedly by the Democratic county committee's dumping of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

Grab at Jarecki Issue.

Before that action the Horner forces had concluded there was nothing to be gained by a fight against the Nash machine. But the rejection of Judge Jarecki as county judge candidate, they agreed in this conference, gave them an issue that would stir not only the Poles of Chicago, but also the thousands of small home owners who benefited from tax rate reductions, and advocates of honest elections who may listen to pleas that the machine is attempting to wrest the election board from the hands of an honest judge.

Gov. Horner said he and his friends had agreed to give their full support to Judge Jarecki. He said the same help would be given State Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, majority leader in the last session, whose renomination, it is said, is now being fought by Nash's orders.

Gov. Horner disclosed that he would recommend that Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago, now state senator from the 5th district, be included in the Horner state slate for congressman at large.

Pressed hard for an answer to the question whether the Horner forces will have any candidates for county offices in addition to Judge Jarecki, the governor said that matter is entirely in the hands of his Cook county associates. State's Attorney Courtney and other conferees would say only that Chicago headquarters, at some place not yet selected, will be opened soon.

Courtney was asked about a whispered report that there is a plan afoot for him to enter the senatorial race, a plan that entails the withdrawal of Congressman Lucas. His reply was that there had been little discussion of the senatorship and that many had urged him to run.

Martin to Run for Congress.

No foundation for the report was discovered, and it was learned that friends of Congressman Lucas have been quietly feeling out the possibility of his obtaining the indorsement of the Cook county committee. That indorsement, however, is expected to to go to Michael L. Igoe some time after he announces his candidacy this week. Action by the committee, however, will be delayed, as Nash has gone to Florida for about ten days.

During his absence, however, things will be going forward with the formation of a state ticket to oppose the Horner ticket. It is indicated that John C. Martin of Salem, now ending his term as state treasurer, will be one of the two candidates for congressman-at-large to replace Congressman E. V. Champion of Peoria, who has said he will not run again.

An effort also is being made, it is said, to persuade Bruce A. Campbell of Belleville, chairman of the state central committee, to run for state treasurer against the Horner nominee, Speaker Louie E. Louis of Christopher.

Name of Link Heard.

Another name now heard in the Nash organization is that of William W. Link for the nomination for clerk of the state Supreme court. The Horner indorsement went to the incumbent, Adam Bloch. Link is now a member of the city board of local improvements and, like Bloch, is of Polish descent.

Link has the support of the Polish-American Democratic organization, which on Saturday indorsed Circuit Judge John Prystalski for judge of the County court over Judge Jarecki.

Judges Jarecki and Prystalski kept their own battle going yesterday.

"Because I performed the duties of my office, because I was mindful of the interests of the people, because I would not be a submissive bootlicker, I was denied indorsement by the county organization," Judge Jarecki said over the radio.

"My nomination does not depend on the bosses, but upon the people, who will speak on April 12. This is not just a question of what happens to me personally. It is a question whether the bosses can dictate, whether the people will submit to the political boss."

In his statement Judge Prystalski said:

"Insinuations that a man's candidacy is inimical to the best public interests merely because his character and standing are recognized by a political organization as vote compelling are the height of absurdity. Those who know me as a Chicagoan, as a lawyer and a judge for a generation, need no assurance that anything could force me to compromise the standards upon which my reputation has been built."

PERKINS' LABOR STAND STIRS UP OFFICIAL STORM

Kennedy Angered by Ship Bill Opposition.

vestigate and report the facts to him. For sixty days after the appointment of such a board a strike or lockout is prohibited. Thereafter, if the dispute were not settled as a result of the investigation, the employés would be free to strike. Thus the law operates to postpone a strike but not to compel arbitration.

The national defense program is vitally affected by conditions in our merchant marine because of the imperative need of a large number of merchant ships capable of conversion into navy auxiliaries in time of war. The United States possesses few such potential auxiliaries today, to such a low state has our merchant fleet sunk. One of the prime objects of the program for subsdizing the construction of merchant ships is the provision of craft built on navy specifications for gun emplacements and other purposes required of navy auxiliaries.

Points to Need of Ships.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, recently testified before the commerce committee that in the event of the United States becoming involved in war with a major power not less than 500 merchant ships would be needed for use as cruisers, transports, patrol ships, tankers and supply ships of various kinds. He estimated that the construction of such a merchant fleet would cost 1¾ billion dollars.

It is consideration of the emergency existing in the provision of this arm of national defense that has intensified the criticism of the secretary of labor for obstructing the maritime commission's effort to restore order and discipline in the merchant marine as a prerequisite to the building of a new fleet. Events are conspiring to place the President himself on the spot with regard to this phase of national defense plans.

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, retired, declares an American navy double the size of Japan's the minimum which is necessary to avert war in the Pacific and assure victory for the United States if war should come in that area.

Tells What U. S. Needs.

In advocating a navy double the size of Japan's, which he estimated would cost two and one-half billion dollars, Admiral Stirling said that the minimum aggregate needed by this country would be as follows, the first column of numerals showing the minimum requirement and the second column the number of ships needed to attain this requirement:

	Required.	Lacking.
Capital ships	24	8
Aircraft carriers	12	6
Cruisers, heavy	24	6
Cruisers, light	60	41
Destroyers [modern]	176	92
Submarines [modern]	90	54

Admiral Stirling expressed the opinion that if the United States navy had been known to be strong enough to win command of the sea in the orient from Japan, the Panay bombing would not have occurred, "nor the faces of our diplomats slapped by Japanese soldiers." Naval strategists, he said, recognized that the United States fleet was incapable of successful war operations west of the Hawaiian area because of its relative weakness and lack of base in the oriental sea.

Relatives Drop In to View Tenth 'O' and His Brothers

Boswell, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Relatives and friends used their Sunday holiday today to call on the newest "O" addition to the William Flynn family. He is Oakley, just a few weeks old. He has nine brothers, whose first names all begin with "O." They are Oral, Odie, Othie, Ovie, Orval, Otis, Oscar, Oliver, and Omer. The "O" idea originated from Mrs. Flynn's first name—Ollie.

For a Bigger Navy

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, retired, declares that an American navy double the size of Japan's is necessary to avert war in the Pacific. In the chart below, the black part of each vessel represents present strength. The white represents the number of vessels necessary to bring United States naval strength to the minimum requirement he suggests, which is the total of the two figures in each category.

HOWARD IS LOSING TO BAKER IN RACE FOR HEAD OF I.T.U.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Only two of eleven locals of the International Typographical union favors the reëlection of Charles P. Howard as president, according to incomplete returns received here tonight. Howard, who is secretary of the C. I. O. and who was rejected as a delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention at Denver because of his C. I. O. affiliation a few months ago, led in only two cities, Wichita, Kas., by 44 to 18, and Memphis by 98 to 21.

Nine other locals favored C. M. Baker of San Francisco, who has urged that the I. T. U. remain with the A. F. of L. The voting in these cities follows: Indianapolis, union No. 1, 204 to 9; St. Louis, No. 8, 289 to 89; Portland, Ore., 111 to 61; Detroit, No. 18, 216 to 145; Mobile, Ala., 28 to 13; Nashville, Tenn., No. 20, 61 to 21; Tampa, Fla., 23 to 17; Kansas City, Mo., 120 to 16, and Pueblo, Colo., No. 175, 21 to 3.

SEEK IN VAIN TO REVIVE BABY.

Firemen of inhalator squad No. 9 worked vainly yesterday morning for nearly three hours in an effort to revive Daniel Murphy Jr., 15 months old, of 7613 South Marshfield avenue, who was stricken with convulsions which doctors blamed on a brain hemorrhage.

AFFIDAVITS BARE C. I. O. AGITATOR'S RED MEMBERSHIP

Copeland Accuses Bridges of Spreading Doctrin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.], chairman of the senate committee on commerce, said tonight that Harry Bridges, C. I. O. leader on the Pacific coast, is a communist and is spreading communism in the seamen's and stevedores' unions.

Harry Bridges.

The senator based his charge on affidavits that Bridges was for years an active communist under the alias of Harry Dorgan and on a communist party book issued to Dorgan which Bridges is alleged to have lost in 1935. A photostatic copy of the book, in possession of the committee, shows notations said to be in Bridges' handwriting.

Committee to Study Evidence.

The evidence will be considered by the committee in connection with its investigation of the failure of the labor department to deport the Australian born Bridges as a communist under the deportation law.

The committee obtained several affidavits independently of the labor department, one of which charged that Bridges, under the alias of Dorgan, conferred frequently with Sam D'Arcy, west coast communist, before and after the latter went to Moscow as an American delegate to the comintern and returned with instructions for dissemination of communism in the United States.

Other affidavits connected Bridges with Earl Browder, head of the American communist party.

Tells of Hunt for Book.

A sworn statement by a California worker reads as follows:

"I told them [investigators] that Bridges had lost his book [communist membership card].

"That was in 1935. Bridges told Hanoff [another communist] he thought his wife had the book. So the party gave him funds to send his wife away on a vacation and Hanoff, Bridges, and other persons combed Bridges' home from top to bottom to find the book. Bridges said he had some notes in his own handwriting in this book and he had to get it back."

Senator Copeland said the committee is determined to get to the bottom of the mystery of the failure of the labor department to enforce the deportation law against Bridges.

"This man Bridges is a menace and should be deported," the senator asserted.

Bridges Demands Hearing.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. maritime labor leader, tonight challenged the senate commerce committee to subpena him so he could deny charges of Chairman Copeland. "I doubt if Senator Copeland has the courage to subpena me," said Bridges, "and give me a chance to prove shipowners and their tools like Copeland are more responsible in every way for unrest in the maritime industry than I am."

U. S. IS WILLING TO LIMIT ARMS, DECLARES HULL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull tonight expressed this government's willingness to limit and reduce armaments.

Hull, who yesterday told Japan this country would build bigger dreadnaughts if Japan did not communicate her intentions regarding battleship construction, informed a radio audience:

"While compelled, in a world in which increased construction of armaments is a regrettable fact, to render adequate our military and naval establishment, we are ready at any time to join with other nations in a common effort to bring about a general limitation and reduction of armaments."

Speaking under auspices of the economic policy committee, an organization dedicated to support of trade agreements, Hull assailed nations which seek to be self-sufficient economically. Such a nation dooms its population to an inescapable lowering of all standards of civilized existence, he said.

CRUSHED BETWEEN TRAINS.

Common Sense About Constipation

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the bowels—you need some food that passes on through the stomach without being digested. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies this. It gives the bowels the bulky mass they need to work properly. And All-Bran also gives them the intestinal-tonic, vitamin B_1, which helps restore their tone.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. But however you eat it, be sure you get some every day. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

W. K. KELLOGG'S GRANDSON FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Shotgun and Note to His Brother Nearby.

John L. Kellogg Jr., grandson of W. K. Kellogg, the Battle Creek breakfast food manufacturer, was found shot to death yesterday in the young man's food factory at 900 North Franklin street. His shotgun was lying beside him. Near the body a note was found asking that his brother be summoned.

Oliver Karwoski, coroner's investigator, said he learned from relatives that Kellogg had suffered a disappointment Saturday when informed that he had been refused a patent on a popcorn machine. Kellogg had been experimenting with this machine for two hours before the shooting.

President of Food Company.

Kellogg, who was 27 years old, was president of New Foods, Inc., food products manufacturers, with offices at 105 West Adams street.

He lived at 5555 Sheridan road with his wife, the former Mary Louise Muench, whom he married last June after a courtship that began on a Transcontinental and Western Air plane on which she was a stewardess and he was a passenger. She is an expectant mother.

Found by Factory Foreman.

Kellogg began developing the machine, intended to separate popped corn from the unpopped and burned kernels, while in his grandfather's employ three years ago. He continued improving it when he organized his own company here a year ago. Yesterday he asked his factory foreman, Joseph Urban, to help him with some experiments on the machine.

After the experiments Kellogg went to the factory office, where Urban found him dead a short time later. The note merely asked that Kellogg's brother be called. He is Keith Kellogg of 313 Wisner avenue, Park Ridge. The young men's father, a manufacturer, who lives at 2952 Lake Shore drive, is in Florida.

Spencerian Drama

VICTORIA SPENCER.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

MELVIN DRABEN.

The newest troubles—and they'll be two sided—of Attorney Mary Belle Spencer will be aired Wednesday in county highway police court in Homewood. On one side will be Mrs. Spencer, charged with assault and battery, and on the other, Melvin Draben, 20 years old, 35 McEldowney place, Chicago Heights, charged with disorderly conduct.

The police were summoned yesterday to the Spencer home, just outside Chicago Heights. There they found her holding young Draben, whom she had just shellacked with a milk bottle and hammer.

He was taken to the station, charged with disorderly conduct and freed on bond. Then he charged Mrs. Spencer with assault and battery, and she was arrested after a parley with police through a storm door.

It seems that Draben took Victoria, 17 years old, one of Mrs. Spencer's daughters, to a tavern, and that when he brought her home she complained to her mother about him.

THIEF IS SHOT BY POLICEMAN NEAR CARDINAL'S HOME

Park Policeman Edward Westhouse pursued a purse thief across the lawn of Cardinal Mundelein's residence, 1555 State parkway, last night and shot him down in front of 1511 Astor street. The thief, identified as Juan Floretto, 34 years old, a Mexican, is in a serious condition in the Bridewell hospital.

Floretto grabbed the purse of Mrs. Minnie Fowler, 50 years old, a modiste, of the Auditorium hotel, in front of 1540 State parkway. She screamed and Policeman Westhouse ran to her aid.

As Floretto ran across the cardinal's yard Westhouse fired three warning shots and then, as the thief turned south in Astor street, shot him down. The thief dropped the purse, containing $3, in his flight.

DROWNS TRYING TO AID CHILDREN; 4 DIE UNDER ICE

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Three little children and a man who tried to rescue them crashed through soft ice and were drowned today in Social pond, a mill pond in the center of the city. Another man who went to their aid also went through the ice, but was pulled out by companions. The children were Anna Muriel Vadeur, 5 years old; her brother, Norman, and Alfred Picard, both 7 years old. Michael Cherwinsky, 25 years old, heard their cries. Ripping off his clothes as he ran, he dashed into the pond. Spectators said he came up with one of the children who had a death grip around his neck and both sank.

SIX KILLED IN WRECK AS FAST TRAIN RAMS EMPTY AUTOMOBILE

Benton, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Missouri Pacific's fast passenger train "the Texan" rammed an unoccupied automobile at a grade crossing near here today, killing three trainmen and three colored passengers.

Hurtling down the tracks 200 yards after striking the car, the locomotive leaped a bank, overturned, and buried itself in soft dirt. Two baggage cars, four day coaches, and two Pullmans left the rails with the engine.

Those killed were Engineer John Thomas Brannan, 67 years old; Peter Grunz, railway express messenger; L. J. Jackson, a colored porter, and two unidentified colored women and an unidentified colored girl.

Labor Conciliator Killed on Strike Mission.

Warrenton, Ga., Feb. 6. — (AP) — Charles L. Richardson, a United States department of labor conciliator, was killed and Maj. W. C. Goldsborough, army flyer of Langley field, Va., was injured slightly when they bailed out of a Florida bound plane nine miles from here today. Richardson's rip cord had not been pulled, although Maj. Goldsborough had instructed him on how to handle the chute.

Richardson was en route to Puerto Rico on a strike adjustment mission. He left Langley field, Va., for Miami last night, where he was to have boarded a Clipper ship. At Miami he was to have met J. L. Bernard, another conciliator. Both had been assigned to a maritime dispute. Richardson, 56 years old, had been with the department eight years.

Maj. Goldsborough said a combination of heavy fog and a disabled radio caused them to fly blindly until the gasoline supply was nearly exhausted, then they jumped. Goldsborough's leg was sprained when his parachute landed him in a tree.

Identify Pilot of Lost Plane.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Stewart Fraser of Brooklyn said today he feared his son John Fraser, 22 years old, was the pilot of an airplane which plunged into the ice-choked Hudson river near West Point late last night.

Dan Mead, manager of a Port Jervis, N. Y., airport, viewed wreckage recovered from the river and said it came from the plane Fraser flew.

The youth, an experienced private pilot, started out from Detroit yesterday ferrying a single engined Stinson.

Newark airport authorities said the plane reported itself in trouble over Martin's Creek, Pa., at 8:55 p. m. They believed the pilot circled Bear mountain until 10:25 p. m., and crashed near the United States Military academy at 11:18 p. m.

Killed in Sight of Home.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 6.—(AP)—John Fenwick, 22 years old, was killed and his brother, G. Bernard Fenwick Jr., 24, was injured, probably fatally, today when their airplane crashed 300 yards from their home in exclusive Worthington Valley.

Escapes in Tragedy

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Wilma Novak, age 2.

John Novak, 21 years old, lay near death in Providence hospital yesterday as the sequel of the drunken rage in which his father, Joseph, 43, seized a pistol, wounded his son, and slew his daughter, Rose, 17, while she shielded her mother and her baby sister, Wilma, 2 years old.

The tragedy occurred Saturday night when Novak returned to his home at 457 West 25th place and demanded steak instead of spaghetti for dinner. He was held yesterday in the Deering police station after appearing in the police showup at 1121 South State street. An inquest will be held at 9:30 a. m. today at the funeral parlors at 712 West 31st street, where Rose's body was taken.

DEPLORES MAD SCRAMBLE FOR TUBA PLAYERS

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The fierce competion among colleges for students is condemned by Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in the foundation's thirty-second annual report, made public today.

"Not long ago the representative of a college dropped in to visit a high school in a small midwestern city," Dr. Jessup reports, "to bring the college to the attention of the pupils of the school. He learned that his was the eighty-third visit of a college public relations officer for that very purpose during the school year.

"We are familiar with the 'inducements' offered to promising athletes, but we may be astonished by the fact that drum majors and tuba players now find themselves possessed of special talents with a marketable value in the college field."

FOUND SEMI-CONSCIOUS; DIES.

Frank D. Ewold Jr., 31 years old, 4323 Ellis avenue, a railroad fireman, died yesterday at the County hospital, where he was taken Saturday night after having been found semi-conscious on the sidewalk at Superior and Clark streets. He apparently died of a skull fracture.

G. P. QUATTRONE, ITALIAN LEADER, IS HONORED BY 2,500

Twenty-five hundred Chicagoans, principally of Italian birth or descent, gathered in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel last night for a testimonial dinner to Dr. Giuseppe P. Quattrone, new recipient of the Cross of Cavalier of the Crown of Italy. Dr. Quattrone, who is 35 years old, is president of the Banco di Napoli Trust company and of the Italian Chamber of Commerce in Chicago.

The decoration was bestowed, said Dr. Franco Fontana, Italian consul general, in recognition of Dr. Quattrone's work among the 300,000 Italo-Americans in Chicago.

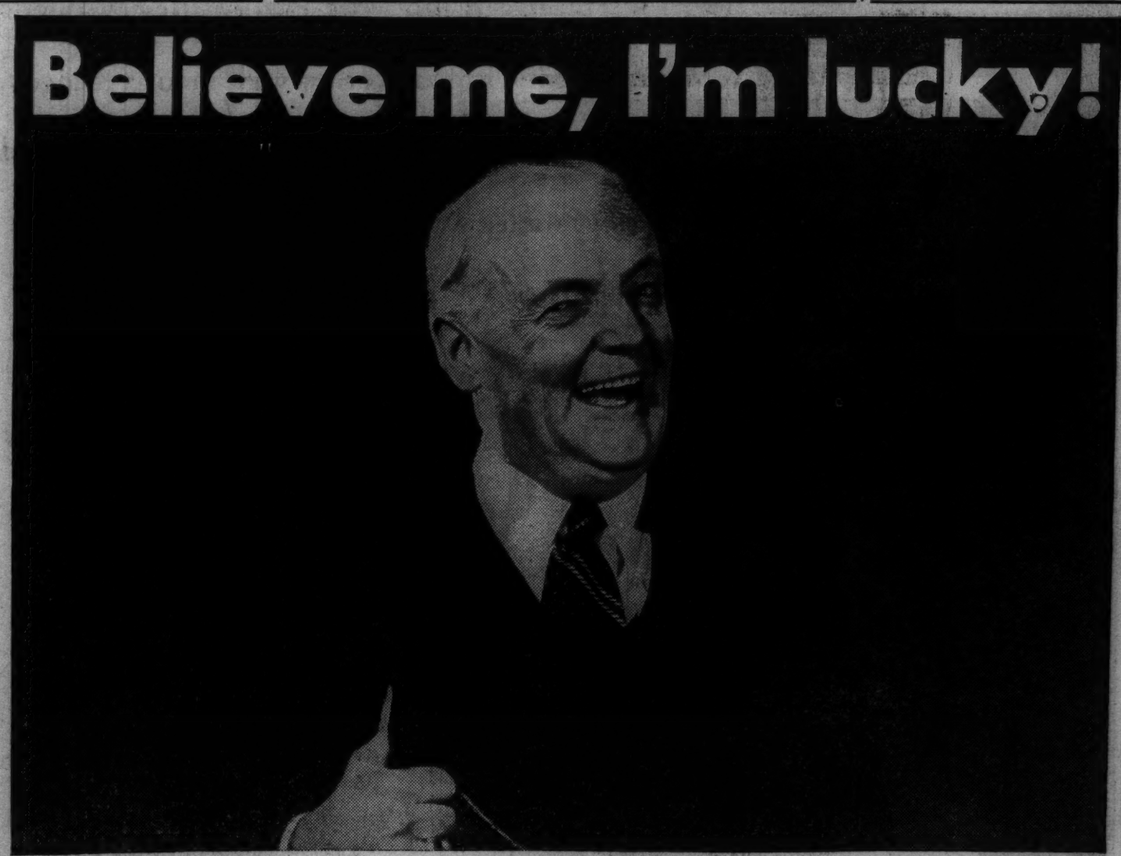
Believe me, I'm lucky!



I'm one of the 40% who live near the "L"

Yes, lucky indeed is the man who has Rapid Transit service within easy walking distance of his home. For good transportation has made his neighborhood a good place to live.

Thanks to the "L", his home and his work are brought close together. He is not slowed down by the increasing congestion of traffic-filled streets. He travels above slow-moving traffic . . . away from the hazards of slippery pavements . . . unhindered by stop lights . . . unmindful of the weather.

He has transportation that he knows he can count on . . . always ready to carry him smoothly and swiftly . . . to the city or the suburbs . . . any hour of the day or night. He saves hours and days of travel time.

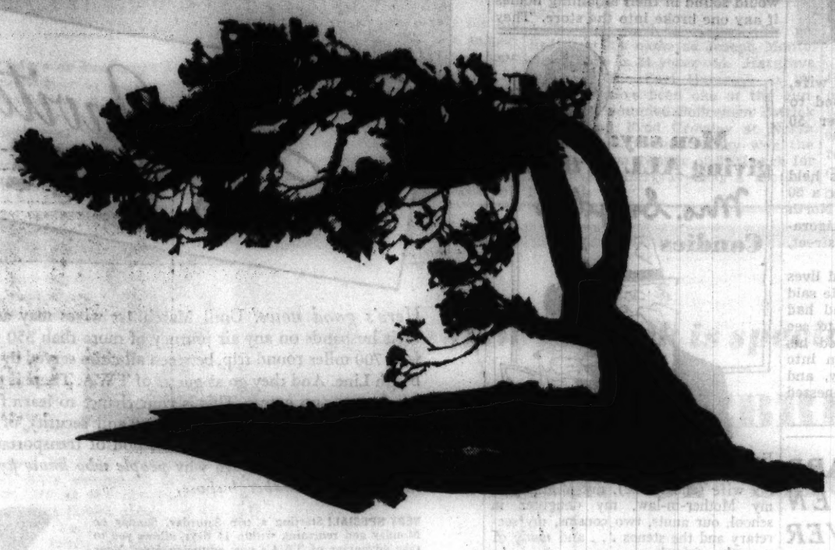
Unfortunately, only 40% of the residents of Chicago and the North and West suburbs have as yet had Rapid Transit service brought to them. But even though the "L" can't come to all of you, you can enjoy its benefits! You can ride the "L" the greater part of your trip by transferring from street cars and buses.

More than 39,000,000 passengers used the transfer plan last year! Try it. Once you find out what "L" service really means you'll never be satisfied with anything less.

"L" passengers ride an average of about 8 miles per trip. Every weekday they ride a total of approximately 3,800,000 Passenger miles . . . miles of travel entirely out of the high accident hazards of the congested streets. Were this great traffic added to that now on the surface, what would the increased daily toll be? Without doubt the elevated Rapid Transit System is the greatest single factor for public safety in Chicago.

GET THERE! Ride the "L" THE FAST, COMFORTABLE WAY

..THINGS THAT BELONG, STICK!



IN A BOOM ERA, as in a recession era, there are things that belong and other things that don't. Usually people who know their jobs manage to stick along through thick and thin, through rich and poor, through up and down. Pretty much the same is true of magazines • • A gigantic amount of competition has swept into the magazine business, and a big chunk of it is good. The good competition will last because it deserves to.

It's a little silly to try to pick flaws in competition just because it hurts. Because, actually, it doesn't hurt. Good competition never does anything but help • • Three years ago when Pictorial Review came under its present management, Pictorial Review went in for a change. It took a good look around and said to itself, "The world has changed somewhat from the day we started way back in 1899—maybe we ought to change somewhat, ourselves." It took some planning, and some fussing, and some headaches, a vast degree of confidence and money to make the change. Pictorial Review said, "The magazines have got to catch up with their readers. Their readers for the most part have run ahead of them" • • Yes, Pictorial Review has folded up the old editorial formula. It's going right ahead with the new one. It's going along because it has to. The Women of America want it. Apparently they are wanting it more than any other publication in its field, because more of them have switched to it in the year gone by • • In passing, as in closing, it is pleasant to be able to tell you that the current February issue of Pictorial Review has set an all-time high for itself in newsstand sales • •

• • The things that belong, STICK. Just as in the good old days.

THE READERS LIKE IT . .

As indicated in the graph showing newsstand circulation through the last twelve months, the surest and most accurate measure of public acceptance.

. . THE ADVERTISER LIKES IT

Because obviously the readers like it. Month by month the gain after gain in linage for a grand total of 26% for 1937 gives the advertising linage picture.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

TOLD BY A HAND

By CALEB

YESTERDAY a business man was introduced to me. He stuck out his hand. I clasped it and shuddered. In extending it he apparently felt he had served the need of courtesy. He expected me to do the lifting and shaking. It was like touching an expired member. There was no response. His hand's demise had been recent for it was still warm. But why should he presume anyone would wish to shake it?

When he was ready to depart, he again thrust out his lifeless extremity. In a moment of indignation I thought it deserved crunching—and I crunched it! And yet, a piece of putty is difficult to hurt.

Many salesmen have lost good orders because of an inert paw extended in place of a living, vital, vigorous hand. Strong men have been presumed to be spineless worms because they didn't know that simple, courteous vitality should be put into a hand clasp.

What does the extender of a mass of inanimate flesh believe another person wants to do with it? I have often wondered what happens when two such people meet. I have tried to imagine Buffalo Bill shaking hands like an amoeba. I cannot vision Theodore Roosevelt having extended a pulpy paw. A man so vital and vigorous as was Marshall Field, I dare say, would never extend a lifeless extremity to represent him in salutation to a man just met.

A handshake is not a complete or infallible index to a person's character or worth, but it is to be noted that people who are vigorous in their work and in the discharge of their responsibilities are apt to have a vital—not a bone-crushing—handshake.

This is true of women as well as of men. A woman looking for employment was sent to me by a mutual friend. She was smartly dressed, good-looking. Her eye was bright. She extended her hand. The shock I received ended all this good impression her appearance and approach had created. Such a girl, I thought, would be inert and lifeless, indifferent and lackadaisical in her handling of customers.

When you shake hands, in the name of all that's holy, shake hands. If your hand seems not alive, you may reasonably be deemed a dead one.

SCORES DRIVEN FROM WISCONSIN HOMES BY FLOOD

Barricade 10 Highways; Farms Inundated.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Scores of persons were removed in rowboats from waterbound homes in portions of southern and central Wisconsin today as rivers and streams, swollen by rain and melting snow, coursed far beyond normal boundaries. Many highways were impassable and furnace fires in low-lying homes were snuffed out by muddy waters reported running several feet deep.

Red Cross workers and coast guardsmen in Racine rescued 12 persons, eight of them children, from a cottage near Horlick's dam on the Root river today. Water had risen to the first floor level and was menacing the building's foundations.

Ten Square Miles Covered.

Five families in the vicinity had evacuated their homes several hours earlier. More than ten square miles of farm land were estimated under water and ten highways in eastern Racine county were barricaded.

A half dozen families were removed from homes at Ollingerville, near Milwaukee, ten marroned families were rescued at Richland Center, and four at Gays Mills.

At Richland Center the Pine river was flowing over land lying within two blocks of the millpond, flooding about 75 basements and blocking state trunk highway 80 north of the town.

Flood Five Feet Deep on Bridge.

The Fox and White rivers inundated a two mile strip about 12 miles on each side of Burlington. The bridge over the Fox river at highway 50 was under five feet of water. Roads under water included highway 41, and state highway 38. One trafic lane of 41 still was passable but the water was rising.

The Kickapoo river rolled over the north and south portions of the town of Gays Mills, forcing the removal of the Frank Moore, Emil Reed, Delbert Orrick, and George Coleman families early today.

Highway 61 in Waukesha county was blocked and highway 83 was closed between highways 18 and 30.

Rock River Threatening.

Freeport, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The Rock river and its tributaries, including the Pecatonica, were rising tonight and with them the threat of flood conditions. Ice jams in a number of places added to the menace. Large areas of lowlands, both in towns and country, were under water and there was water over highways in many places.

The Pecatonica in the western part of Green county in Wisconsin was rising 4 inches an hour. Highway 11 from Monroe to Browntown was closed. The highway from Monroe to Milwaukee was closed to travel from Browntown to Platteville and Shullsburg.

Water Falling at Dixon.

The ice gorges at Dixon, Ill., moved downstream, relieving flood conditions in that town. The Red Cross was caring for a number of families forced to flee their homes in Dixon lowlands.

At Sterling industrial plants in low areas were flooded and rising waters threatened gas and water plants. Conditions at Galena were almost normal after floods from the Galena river had crept through the business district twice in twenty-four hours.

Michigan Flood Swept.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Flood waters crept across wide areas of Michigan today, bringing distress to many and discomfort to scores of homes. Swollen by rains and blocked in their course by ice jams, rivers and small streams flowed over their banks until thousands of acres of farm lands and sections of cities and villages were inundated. Worst affected localities, with the water 3 feet deep in some places, were Muskegon, beside Lake Michigan on the western edge of the state; Alma, in central Michigan, and much of the large eastern "thumb district."

Steve Ligoratis and his wife, Dorothy, who saw him stabbed to death in poolroom fight over 50 cent bet.

Virgil Collins Bohannon was held yesterday following a fight over a 50 cent bet in a poolroom at 3418 North Halsted street in which Steve Ligoratis, 23 years old, of 660 Roscoe street, was knifed fatally.

Bohannon is 23 years old and lives at 3442 North Halsted street. He said he was challenged to fight and had taken off his glasses. Unable to see as a result, he said, he opened his pocket knife and Ligoratis ran into it. The victim's wife, Dorothy, and Bohannon's wife, Bertha, witnessed the encounter.

BODY OF HARVARD STUDENT TAKEN FROM ICY RIVER

Boston, Mass., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The body of Frederick V. Burgess, 21 years old, of Cincinnati, a Harvard law student, was recovered today from the Charles river by the crew of a boat breaking ice. He disappeared last November.

Burgess was the son of Frederick R. Burgess, an accountant for the Vacuum Oil company of Ohio.

TRAP 8 IN ROW; IT'S HOME MADE BURGLAR ALARM

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The Bullamore brothers—James, 78 years old, and Albert, 66—and their homemade burglar alarm got their eighth burglar early today in eight years. He is Samuel Kramer, 31 years old, 206 Reed street, Milwaukee.

The Bullamores live in the village of Somers, six miles northwest of Kenosha, and operate a general store. More than eight years ago they rigged up an alarm system that would sound in their adjoining homes if any one broke into the store. They also put up outside switches by which they could turn on all the lights inside the store. When Kramer entered the store this morning, he started the alarm. The brothers walked out with guns, turned on the lights, and trapped him.

They followed procedure practiced in each of the previous seven times they had trapped burglars. The seventh one they killed. He was Joseph Commonar, a paroled convict. That was last Oct. 28. Of the six other thieves who stumbled into the trap one was wounded.

NEW 'PICKABACK' MAKES TAKEOFF WHILE IN MIDAIR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—For the first time in air history one plane has been launched from another, catapultlike, in midair. The Mayo "pickaback" plane had its first separation trial over the Medway river near Rochester today, and a seaplane, designed for trans-Atlantic service, took off from the back of a booster flying boat while the combined machines were flying at 110 miles an hour at a height of 700 feet.

The decision to test the vital launching apparatus was not made until the machines were actually in the air, the pilots said. Weather conditions were ideal.

Describing the separation flight, Lieut. H. L. Piper, who piloted the seaplane, said, "It was rather like being given a kick in the pants."

For a VALENTINE gift next Monday, I am giving Mrs. Snyder's TO: my wife (and to me), my Mother and my Mother-in-law, my daughter in school, our aunts, two cousins, my secretary and the stenos . . . and many of my other friends.

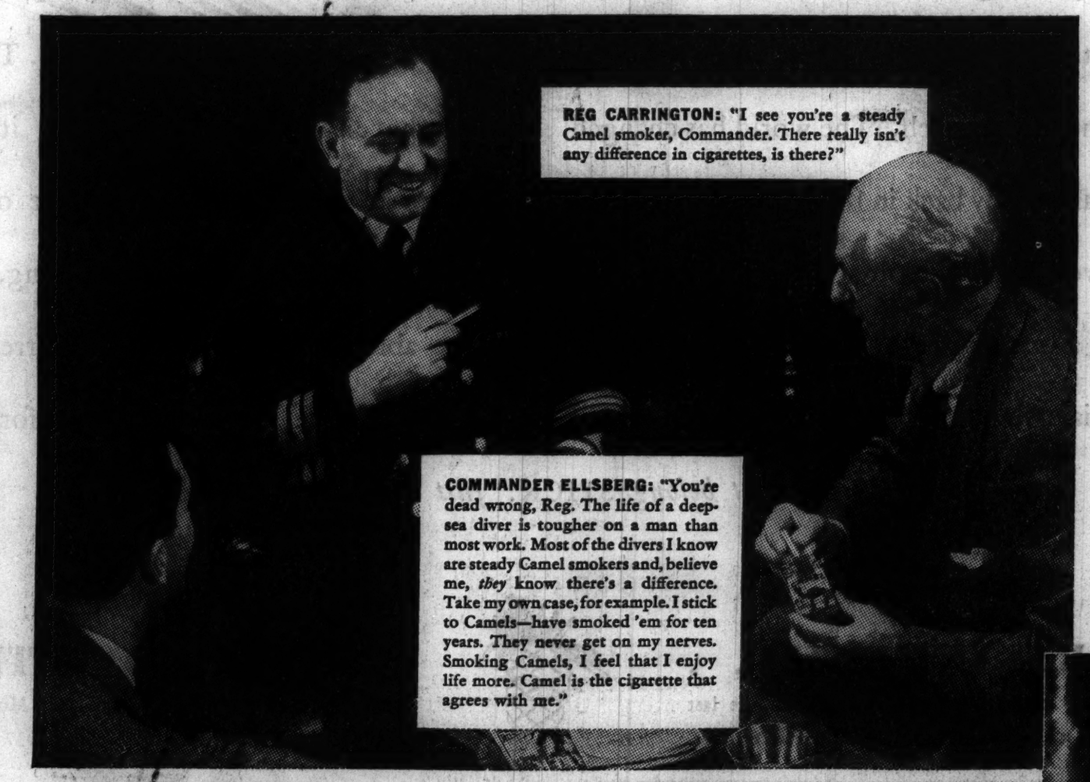
REG CARRINGTON ASKS COMMANDER ELLSBERG:

"Can you tell a Real Difference between Camels and other cigarettes?"



REG CARRINGTON: "I see you're a steady Camel smoker, Commander. There really isn't any difference in cigarettes, is there?"

COMMANDER ELLSBERG: "You're dead wrong, Reg. The life of a deep-sea diver is tougher on a man than most work. Most of the divers I know are steady Camel smokers and, believe me, they know there's a difference. Take my own case, for example. I stick to Camels—have smoked 'em for ten years. They never get on my nerves. Smoking Camels, I feel that I enjoy life more. Camel is the cigarette that agrees with me."

"Absolutely!" says Commander Edward Ellsberg. And millions of other steady smokers agree that Camels have what they want. They know there is a distinct difference in Camels. That's why Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in the world.

A MAN OF ACTION! (right) Commander Ellsberg was the first man to dive to a depth of 20 fathoms. He shares under-sea danger with his men. He says: "The last thing a diver does before going down—and the first thing after coming up—is to smoke a Camel. In work like this, men really appreciate the way Camels hit the spot."

THE ELLSBERG TORCH (left), an invention of Commander Edward Ellsberg. Imagine the long hours of research he put in on this successful invention! Ellsberg is used to fatigue. He says of Camels: "I've found that smoking a Camel after an hour under water—or any tour of duty—gives me a quick 'lift.'"

CLUB-ROOM CONVERSATION (above) so often swings around to cigarettes—an interesting topic to smokers generally. "I can tell the difference in Camels," Commander Ellsberg says. "That famous saying, 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!' expresses how enthusiastic I am about Camels myself. Camels have such an appealing flavor."

OF COURSE an Annapolis man likes to sail! (right) Here's Commander Ellsberg enjoying his favorite sport—small-boat sailing. And Camels are right beside him! "Camels fit in with my leisure hours, too," he says. "It's only common sense that a cigarette made from such choice tobaccos would be a mild, tasty smoke. I've never known Camels to jangle my nerves. That means a lot—because I smoke a lot!"

STRANGLERS KILL MISSING WOMAN AND GOLF PLAYER

(Picture on back page.)

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Semi-nude, the garroted body of a young woman with a strangler's cords still wrapped around her neck and also the neck of a dead man at her side, was discovered by a boy strolling along the bay shore in a remote section of Brooklyn.

Nino Columbo. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Detectives found evidences in the car of a terrific struggle.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Christine Oliveri, 24 years old, and Nino Columbo, 41 known in Brooklyn as an amteur golfer.

Woman Missing Ten Days.

Alfred Oliveri, husband of the dead woman, identified his wife's body and said she had been missing since Jan. 28. Oliveri told police he never had seen Columbo before and was not aware that his wife knew him.

Mrs. Catherine Columbo of Brooklyn identified the dead man as her husband and said he had been missing since last Friday.

Dr. Manuel E. Marten, Brooklyn medical examiner, said both bodies had been lifeless at least three days.

The double slaying was discovered when James Hawkes, 15 years old, out walking with his dog, noticed the woman's stockingless leg sticking out from the rear door of the car. He found a large new oilcloth, 5 feet square, covering both bodies, and blood smeared lengths of new sash cord coiled twice around the woman's neck and three times around the neck of her male companion.

Crime Reconstructed.

"There were at least two slayers," Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine said, after inspecting the crime scene, "and it is evident that both victims were picked up, forced into the car, and driven to the spot where they were killed."

The woman was nude from the waist down. Both bodies were hatless and shoeless.

Attendants at a Brooklyn golf club said Columbo played there almost daily and always seemed well supplied with money. His police record included ten arrests on charges ranging from vagrancy to extortion, with two convictions.

THE DEACON'S COMING BACK TO CHICAGO, BUT NOT FROM GERMANY

Fred [Deacon] Buckminster, 72 year old confidence man whose last operations ended in conviction in Owosso, Mich., will be met as he steps out of the Michigan State prison in Jackson today by James Zegar, Chicago detective. Zegar has a warant for the swindler's arrest on a confidence game charge brought by a Chicago woman.

Miss Agnes Harter, 6544 Newgard avenue, is the complainant. She told police that in 1934 Buckminster and Joseph Weil, the Yellow Kid, persuaded her to advance "traveling expenses" between Chicago and Germany on the representation that they could sell copper lands which she owned. By the time police got on their trail she had given them $32,000, she said.

The Yellow Kid was arrested. He posted $25,000 bond and disappeared Buckminster got away, but Miss Harter identified him from pictures as the man who had posed as a mining expert and a representative of the German government. The record of his conviction in Michigan put Chicago detectives on his trail again. He finishes his sentence today.

8 BILLION DOLLAR SUPERHIGHWAYS MAY PRIME PUMP

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Should President Roosevelt decide to spur recovery by further pump priming measures, as some of his close advisers are urging, he may support legislation for the construction of a transcontinental system of self-liquidating superhighways.

The movement for such legislation is gaining headway among members of congress. The development during the last week which gave special significance to the superhighway talk was a visit which Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio made to the White House on Wednesday.

Senator Bulkley outlined his plan for an 8 billion dollar system of transcontinental toll highways to be financed by bonds issued by a new federal highway corporation. The President was reported to have told the senator that he had been thinking of a similar plan, and to have told him to draft a bill.

FIRE AND SCHOOL OFFICIALS OPEN INQUIRY IN BLAZE

$150,000 Loss at Tuley Building; Fireman Killed

(Picture on back page.)

Fire and school officials yesterday were investigating a fire earlier in the day which partly destroyed the Tuley High school at Claremont and Potomac avenues, causing the death of one fireman and the injury of another. The damage to the building, in which twenty-five classrooms were ruined, was estimated at $150,000.

Thomas Vaid.

Fire companies spent nearly six hours extinguishing the school blaze and had just returned to their headquarters when they were summoned to fight a stubborn fire at the Gresham police station, 8501 Green street, which was caused by backfire from Police Commissioner James P. Allman's automobile. The commissioner's car and part of the station were destroyed, with damage placed at $10,000. Commissioner Allman's chauffeur was getting the car out to take him on a tour of inspection when the backfire ignited the gasoline tank.

Hit by Falling Bricks.

The fireman, who was fatally injured in the school fire, was Thomas Vaid, 27 years old, 2616½ North Laramie avenue, a member of the department for the last two years. He was killed when an explosion in the biological laboratory on the third floor hurled a huge section of coping and several tons of bricks on him while he was placing a ladder against the building in the alley.

John Kaiserlik, 34 years old, 1400 South Pulaski road, who was nearby, was injured. He was taken to the Lutheran Deaconess hospital. Both firemen were members of hook and ladder company No. 7.

During the fire nurses and physicians in St. Elizabeth's hospital, 1433 North Claremont avenue, a half block away, remained in the hospital, assuring patients they were in no danger. The hospital was darkened for 17 minutes when wires supplying current to the building were burned.

57 Companies Respond.

Fifty-seven fire companies, brought by a 5-11 alarm and two extra calls, were necessary to bring the blaze under control.

Division Marshal Thomas Scanlon, who with Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan, directed the work of the firemen, said the blaze started on the third floor in the biological laboratory. No evidence of incendiary origin could be found, he said.

Sylvester Sullivan, engineer for the school, said he made his last inspection of the building Saturday noon before the building was locked.

The school has an enrollment of 3,300 students, with 105 teachers. Miss Hazel L. Stillman, principal, after a conference with school officials yesterday, announced that all pupils will report as usual this morning. Approximately 500 pupils who attended classes in the damaged rooms will be assigned to other rooms in undamaged classrooms and in branch schools.

SEEK TO IDENTIFY INJURED MAN AS CHICAGO SUSPECT

The detective bureau last night requested police of Kansas City, Kas., to forward finger prints of an injured man held there on the possibility he might be Earl Hargrave, an ex-convict, wanted for a shooting scrape with two policemen here two months ago.

The man held by Kansas City police gave his name as Joseph Monte. He said he is 24 years old. Hargrave is about 30. Earl Hargrave is believed to have been one of the gunmen who wounded Policemen Patrick Griffin and Fred Crowley at North and Damen avenues. They won the Tribune hero awards of $100 each for December. Hargrave has a brother, Howard.

MAYOR TO SEEK MORE WPA FUNDS IN WASHINGTON

Mayor Kelly will leave for Washington today to join other midwestern mayors in a conference with C. Aubrey Williams, assistant national WPA director, on a request for an additional $400,000,000 emergency WPA appropriation from congress to supplement funds available until July 1 to the whole nation. The mayors insist the additional money will be necessary to avert increasing unemployment.

Immediately preceding his departure Mayor Kelly will attend a meeting of welfare and business leaders in Hull house to discuss the Chicago relief crisis. Among those attending the meeting will be Miss Charlotte Carr, head resident at Hull house.

THE DOUGLAS SPEECH.

It will be too bad if Chairman Douglas of the SEC does not circulate throughout Washington copies of the speech he delivered last Tuesday night in Chicago before the Economic club. Certain portions of the speech should be of distinct aid to congressmen who are considering, and have been for many months, changes in the income tax law. Other parts throw light upon suggested legislation to curb big business.

For the attention of the members of the ways and means committee, whose function it is to submit a revised tax law, Mr. Douglas should mark the paragraphs in his speech referring to the financing of small businesses. Therein Mr. Douglas observed that small industries have been financed by the plowing back of earnings into the enterprizes. That is precisely the point which was made against the surplus earnings tax and ignored when it was enacted. And that is the point which has been made by those who have since urged its repeal. Now that so important a member of the New Deal as Mr. Douglas has recognized the importance of plowing back earnings into the business, there should be no delay in repealing the law which denies firms one of their most important sources of capital for expansion.

The President has apparently given some consideration to the financing difficulties which small firms have because of the surplus earnings tax. It is an open secret that a plan for government loans to small business is to be one of the proposals of the little business conference at Washington. But few will insist that the privilege of getting into debt to the government is a satisfactory substitute for the right to use one's own earned capital.

The secretary of the interior and Assistant Attorney General Jackson should receive a copy of the Douglas speech with the portions blue penciled referring to the distribution of incomes to small investors and the importance of small corporations. Mr. Ickes and Mr. Jackson have been of the impression that all the worth while income and economic power in the United States have been gravitating into the hands of 60 men and their relatives. Said Mr. Douglas, first as to incomes: "Investment in this country in the past twenty years has undergone a shift from a very few but very rich private families and individuals to the masses. It was not so long ago when dividend and interest income was an unknown quantity to the great majority of American families. The spread of ownership of bonds and stocks among the masses has resulted in more than one-third of the dividend and interest income now being received by individuals or families making tax returns of $5,000 or less; and 50 per cent of the total was received by our large middle class whose total income is $10,000 or less."

Secondly, as to the importance of small business here and now, Mr. Douglas said: "Strangely enough many people fail to understand how extremely important small industry is to our whole economy. It takes no statistical analysis to indicate the enormous importance to our nation of the industry employing from 100 to 200 men and women. Out of a total of 411,000 corporations reporting balance sheets and filing income tax returns in 1934, 386,000 had total assets of less than a million dollars. Thus, the corporations with less than a million dollars of assets were almost 95 per cent of the total corporations. Large industry itself is to a large extent dependent upon small industry for its raw materials and for its markets. The small industry in most small cities and towns in the country is our basic foundation."

Most of the New Deal legislation in the past has been based upon the assumption that ownership of property and income are concentrated and becoming more so. Mr. Douglas, from the abundant information available to him, has shown that incomes are not concentrated and are becoming less so.

Further legislation is now urged to curb large corporations on the assumption that they do not permit small business to exist. Mr. Douglas has shown that also to be a false assumption.

It is too much to expect that the New Deal will now seek the repeal of the legislation enacted to correct conditions which have been proved by a prominent New Dealer not to exist. It will, however, be difficult for Jackson, Ickes, and men of their stripe to use in rousing class antagonisms information which the chairman of the SEC has found to be a fake.

THE PALLIATIVE AND THE CURE.

When Luther M. Walter, Chicago lawyer, recently appeared before the interstate commerce commission to propose a plan whereby any increase in revenues granted the railways should be pooled, there was a very natural reaction—no good. Why should a well located line divide its earnings with its poorer sisters? It seems a clear case of subsidizing the grocer located on the wrong side of the street. With further study, however, it would appear that railway earnings are always pooled—to a certain extent.

The railroads of the United States were developed in five clearly defined groups. First there were the New England roads, and second the eastern trunk lines that connected New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore with western waterways at Buffalo, Erie, Pittsburgh, and Wheeling. Farther to the west the so-called central lines were extended to Chicago and the Mississippi river, while a fourth group reaches Minneapolis, Omaha, and Kansas City, where the transcontinental lines took off for the Pacific coast.

In the development of the country's transportation system, through rates have been extended across these natural or artificial barriers and the division of the revenues between the groups is naturally a big factor in railway financial health. Changes in the divisional arrangements have been many. It is not pooling, and yet it is—indirectly. Let us consider the case of the New England roads.

Some years ago they were in sore straits. Forests had been denuded and many of the bulk manufacturing industries had moved to other parts of the country. True, these activities were replaced by others, but a precision tool establishment does not require the mass freight service necessary for a great cotton mill. The difficulties of the New England roads were adjusted by increasing their proportions of through rates to other parts of the country, necessarily at the expense of their western connections.

In the present crisis the wealthier roads are located in the so-called Pocahontas area, deriving huge revenues for hauling West Virginia coal to the seaboard. The needy carriers are located in the middle west, their earnings having been depleted by drouths and the government's scarcity program. The groups are not complementary and therefore no plan for the rearrangement of divisions is possible. The freight rates cannot be unequally advanced without dislocation of industry. Why not direct pooling of earnings instead of the indirect method that was applied in the New England case?

While an element of unfairness seemingly persists, it must be conceded that the fixation of all rates by a Washington burocracy alters the circumstances. The rate structures have not been permitted to develop naturally, so an unnatural remedy must be devised. This treatment, however, should be followed by the only permanent cure, which is regional consolidation so that a single road will serve both fat and lean areas.

SIR JOHN AND THE FRENCH SIRENS.

Whenever Sir John Reith and his colleagues of the British Broadcasting corporation listened in to something other than their own product and heard the programs in English coming from France, they didn't like what they heard. It was too good. British broadcasting is a monopoly entirely controled by the government and the programs are just what a burocratic board thinks the British public ought to hear. The French programs in English were as vivacious as the British were dull, but contained advertising. They were what we call sponsored and had the commercial plugs inserted in them. Being commercial they were intended to entertain. If they weren't worth while listening to, it was just money thrown away to offer them.

The British liked them, but Sir John didn't. He appealed to his majesty's government. The foreign office went to work. It brought pressure on the French government, which in turn persuaded the three French companies, the Radio-Normandie, the Radio-Toulouse, and the Radio-Mediterranee, to stop the special broadcasts using English. The British demand put a strain on diplomacy, but the French yielded and the British Broadcasting corporation had its way.

The victory, however, was one of face and not of fact. The three French stations continue their broadcasts. The British listeners can still get them, and, as one London commentator says, "Though we can still hear it talk in French, it was simpler to hear it talk in English." While these burocrats were stopping the French stations from sending entertaining nonprovocative programs to the English, the B. B. C. was entering upon a schedule of broadcasts in Arabic to the Arabs, for a political purpose, to counteract other broadcasts from Italy in Arabic, both broadcasts being intended to influence opinion and action in a highly excited part of the world where national and racial influences are fermenting. Europe itself is being lambasted by the outpourings from government controled stations seeking political effect in foreign lands. It is a crime in Germany, for instance, to be caught listening to a soviet broadcast. In Great Britain the offense was listening to an entertaining one.

The errors and evils of burocracy are inherent in it. Normal human nature seems to degenerate into wilful arbitrariness as soon as a person is put in charge of a bureau where his word becomes imperative to the people. Tolerance, intelligence, and fair dealing seem to give way gradually, if not at once, to obstinacy, indifference, and ineffectiveness. This is so universally true that it almost relieves the person of responsibility and fastens it upon the system which so quickly converts him from a reasonable human being into an automatic martinet.

Editorial of the Day

TULIPS FROM FOUR TO SIX.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

The mail brings an invitation. It is scanned suspiciously with an excuse already shaping itself when something remarkable about it catches and enchants the eye. There is a note in the lower left corner. It does not say "Don't dress," "Small dance," or "Bridge later." It says and means "Michaelmas daisies."

Why should not flower days become the fashion? Every one who gardens has suffered the trying experience of seeing critical guests arrive just as the garden's pride looks embarrassingly scraggly. Like babies and pets, plants cannot be counted on to play up to company. Perhaps you have permitted yourself to mention the splendor of a new gladiolus to neighbors who have not done so well with these flowers. It is certain that they will pop in to view your triumph when it is least triumphant. Many a garden sulks when it should be aglow for important eyes, and none can forsee what night white fly may strike nor what morn prove the infinite capacity of cutworms. Therefore this hint from England comes to us ablaom with inspiration.

Consider the advantage of inviting to Sunday supper "with daffodils first" friends who otherwise might have come when all spring's gold hung tarnished. The gardener's innocent vanity leaps at the thought of having his sweet peas admired at the perfect moment by those who exasperatingly viewed them en déshabille last season. And this satisfaction is attainable. His wife simply gives a luncheon for the sweet peas instead of for a lecturer. There is no reason why dahlias should not hold at homes, when they already are honored at large receptions every fall. "We hope you and Hobart can come to see the tuberous begonias, and we may have a little music." With such a restful revolution in entertaining begun, one looks forward happily to a summer of invitations to say nothing to a bevy of young snapdragons, to spend an hour beside a neighbor's water lilies and go home without mentioning scores.

THREE BRIDGE FIENDS on a Canadian Pacific train bound for the suburbs looked about for a fourth, according to Leon Mandel's story.

"Play bridge?" they asked a mild looking little man.

"Sort of," he acquiesced, and was pressed into a game.

"I bid a diamond," said the first bidder.

"A heart," said the second.

"A spade," said the third.

There was a long silence, and all three waited for the newcomer to bid. Finally one of them said, glaring impatiently, "What do you do?"

"Who? me? O, I carry the mail to Medicine Hat," he answered.

HYMN FOR ALL.

O God of whom all men dream yet none may know,
If You are but the great creative force
Which pulls all things to life that they may go
Their ways upon an indeterminate course
Fortuitously shaped, if You arrange
No scheme in spite of Your exhaustless might,
All awe, all awe and praise to You, O strange,
Inestimable source of life and light.

But if, the conscious lover of all things
As well as maker, You direct from hour
To hour their destinies, if Your care brings
The fawn to shelter from the thunder shower,
If flight-worn swallows strengthen at Your nod,
Behold man's plight this day and save, O God!

Adelaide Love.

A RECESSION ACTIVITY.

A toupee maker in Chicago told a visitor to his shop that the best hair for his purpose came from Moravia and Czechoslovakia, because the women constantly wear shawls which protect the hair from the sun, thus keeping it lustrous. The women sell their hair as fast as it grows long enough to market, he said. Louis J. Mayer naturally assumes the girls about town who wear peasant scarfs over their heads are going in for the same stunt.

Variation.

A music publishing house received a letter with an order for four copies "BY MERE MR. SHANE."

OUR FAVORITE BOOKMAN speaks:

We furnish you the list and we furnish the books, but we cannot furnish the light. It is within you. We can tell you, however, how to recognize the flash. The book you've always intended to read, the title that arouses your curiosity, the hunch you've had but have never acted upon . . . these are the signs." THE HONORABLE JUDGE.

The wife of a judge who lives in the home town of Jazbo of Old Dubuque calls her husband "honey"—"Hon" for short. One evening when company was coming for dinner she was giving instructions to the cook and she said, "And this will be for the judge . . ."

"O, for Hon, huh!" cook exclaimed.

The judge's wife smiled and said: "Kathryn, I am the only one who calls the judge Hon.

"That's what you think," said Kathryn. "Everybody calls him that. Why, even his mail comes with Hon on the envelope."

MELTING POT NOTE.

A young Czechoslovakian came to America many years ago, settled in Chicago, and opened a drug store at 14th and Wentworth avenue. Although he spoke no English he prospered. His trade came solely from the Chinese, and he learned to speak English from the Chinese, too. Now he talks pidgin English.

LESS UNDERSTANDABLE than the above oddment is the fact that an employé of a Chicago detective agency sold an article on finance to a financial magazine the other day.

FRANK BUCK was through town Saturday on his way west and his conversation largely concerned his latest acquisition, a 9 year old gorilla that weighs nearly 500 pounds—the largest in captivity. "Three times the size of Joe Louis," he phrased it. Buck is determined to keep this one alive and has a specially constructed cage for it with two thick plate glass partitions and a special air conditioning unit so that the temperature is the same in the gorilla's cage whether it is in Canada or Texas. Because gorillas are subject to pulmonary ailments, visitors permitted to see it in Sarasota, Fla., were asked to wear handkerchiefs over their mouths.

HOW ARE CONTACT GLASSES WORN?

FOR several generations the thought has been expressed that instead of ordinary spectacles, which pinch the skin of the nose or are held in place by shafts over the ears, there might be made a thin glass cover for the front of the eyeball, thus avoiding the necessity of wearing visible machinery on the face. Hirschell, an English physicist, first proposed the idea—whereupon it slumbered for several decades. Few useful experiments were made until within the last few years, when German and Hungarian scientists not only improved all former designs but greatly extended their clinical use.

One type resembles an artificial eye, the center part consisting of thin, transparent glass which contains the lens adjustment essential to vision. Another has a clear portion with an outside holding rim. This latter form causes no pressure and—when placed in position—the edge rests on the white part of the eye with little or no discomfort.

In utilizing these agents great care must be taken that they do not fit too tightly, that is, that the rim will not stop the circulation. The glass cup is filled with salt solution before attachment to the eye. If the adjustment is not accurate this liquid will leak out, bubbles will appear, and the sight will be imperfect.

When first advocated, so-called contact lenses were resorted to exclusively by those who were afflicted with some deformity of the cornea, but today they are employed for errors of refraction, chiefly marked nearsightedness and astigmatism. In addition they are helpful in the treatment of infections such as ulcers that may develop on the front part of the eye. By this means antiseptics or stimulating drugs can be held in contact with the diseased part. There is no danger that they will be washed away by the winking lids.

Many persons in public life, particularly singers, musicians, actors, and those participating in social functions, may desire to do away with the regular glasses. Furthermore, spectacles may be a real menace to those engaging in sports.

How long can these devices be worn? Much depends on how well they fit, and it is only fair to state that some cannot wear them at all—the discomfort is too great. The highly nervous, jittery individual will not prove a suitable subject. On the average, however, Fewell reports that they can be kept on for from three to eight hours at a time. It should be noted, however, that the solution may become cloudy or leak out after a brief period. While it is a good deal of a bother, this condition demands that the contact glasses be removed from time to time, refilled and reapplied.

Recently, however, many advances have been made by Dallos of Hungary. He makes a mold of the anterior portion of the eye with a substance that will solidify at ordinary room temperature. From this a more permanent cast is prepared which gives an exact model of the curvature to be fitted. With this as a guide the proper contact glass bearing the necessary modification for eyesight can be ground. Up to now American manufacturers have not put on the market lenses made according to the Dallos method and the process of obtaining such glasses from Europe is somewhat complicated.

On account of the difficulties of fitting and manufacturing the glasses they are at present quite expensive, so that their practical field is chiefly in the correction of visual defects due to corneal disorders and for the use of those with high refractive errors who must make public appearances. Improvements are being made constantly so that their application may be more general before long.

NEEDS MORE SLEEP.

C. W. writes: I am sure my daughter is injuring her health. She so loves a good time, and she is popular, bright, and attractive. But she rarely gets more than six or seven hours of sleep at night, takes only a cup of coffee for breakfast, then rushes off to work. She spends the evenings until the small hours of the morning with a group of splendid friends—all inoculated with the same bug.

REPLY.

Remind her of the old saying:

Pleasures, in a Judaslike way,
While they kiss us ever betray.

Some day, no doubt, she will marry and rear a family. Better build good health while there is time. She needs nine hours of sleep regularly as a minimum.

EMOTIONALLY DISTURBED.

Mrs. A. E. G. writes: I am told I have an overacid condition. Taking milk of magnesia gives great relief.

What treatment or diet would you suggest?

Could this make me terribly nervous and upset?

REPLY.

Did your physician diagnose your case, or just some friend? Your emotional disturbance is probably the cause, not the result, of your nervous indigestion. Practice mental hygiene. Use an ordinary wholesome diet.

WON'T BE OUTGROWN.

Mrs. D. S. writes: My son, 14 years of age, has bad posture. Relatives say he will outgrow this, but it seems to be getting worse. His shoulders are rounded and a thickness is developing across the upper part of his back. He is not at all athletic.

Would exercise correct the condition?

REPLY.

Gymnastic exercises under an expert trainer will help. He will not outgrow it without effort. An orthopedic specialist may be consulted.

SOME TERMS EXPLAINED.

Reader writes: What is the difference between fissure, fistula, hemorrhoids, and piles?

REPLY.

Fissures are linear breaks in the surface of the skin.

A fistula is an abnormal passage leading from an abscess cavity or a hollow organ to the surface, or from one abscess cavity or organ to another.

Hemorrhoids, or piles, are varicose [dilated] conditions of the external hemorrhoidal veins, causing painful swellings.

NOT HEREDITARY.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—The flashing light of falling stars and comets is caused by electrons and atoms torn from their surfaces as they pass through the air and not by friction, is the theory of J. Hoppe, German astronomer at the Jena [Thuringia] observatory. In a recent issue of the Astronomical News he advanced this new theory, stating also that meteors do not burn and evaporate before reaching the earth's surface, but drift to earth in small or large particles, the falling speed depending on their size.

His theory is embodied in an article called "Physical Proceedings Occurring During the Penetration of Meteoric Bodies into the Earth's Atmosphere." The writer held that the illumination of planetary bodies when entering the earth's atmosphere is due to ionization, and is a phenomenon of luminescence.

Speeding through the atmosphere at a rate of between 10 and 200 kilometers [about 6 to 125 miles] per second, a planetary body pushes back forcefully the particles of air it encounters and the force, said Hoppe, tears atoms and electrons from its surface. Through ionization, these atoms and electrons combine with atmospheric particles to form the cloud of gas which surrounds the planetary body.

The appearance of a "ball of fire" and a meteor's tail, which are of such huge dimensions that they cannot be explained by ionization, are due to the fact that gas clouds surrounding a meteor contain rays saturated with high frequency short wave particles, Hoppe added. These, he said, lead to the illumination of more extensive masses of air. The liberated atoms and electrons, seeking to rejoin behind the meteor, cause the lighted tail.

Hoppe asserted the atoms and electrons are able to join more quickly as the atmosphere grows more dense. Thus meteors have visible tails only in the upper layer of the earth's atmosphere, he said.

In explaining his view that falling bodies do not fade away after flashing rapidly across the heavens because of evaporation, Hoppe said that neither a meteor nor a falling star disappears completely. The remainders of smaller falling stars drift slowly to earth, while larger particles reach the earth with the usual falling speed.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife, during the time I was married to her, had a quarter interest in an estate in Detroit which was administered by an older sister. She was getting statements and checks for the amount due her at certain periods. This estate belonged to their mother, who died in 1919, but [1] the division of the property was made before she died, consequently I find no registration of this estate in Detroit. The property is in Detroit. My wife died in Chicago on July 5, 1936, and left me with a boy 12 years old. She did not make any will.

2. I have employed an attorney in Detroit, but this sister of my late wife will not answer any of his questions and refuses to coöperate in any way. He advised her to put [3] it through probate, and when she sent out a statement of the estate, which was due since January, 1936, it had a lot of fictitious expenses, which left a very small balance due. I have seen her and spoken to her about it, but I cannot get an answer.

The estate is very small and [4] my attorney has advised me to see another attorney here in order to put the matter through probate. The estate is so small that there is not enough to pay the two attorneys. This woman also has a deed to a vacant lot which was paid for out of moneys paid to my late wife out of her share of the estate. She has promised to send me this deed in the early part of 1937, but I have not received it.

5. What can I do to compel her to hand this over to me? S. B.

1. If there was no provision for survivorship between the co-owners, your wife's share would go to your wife's heirs on her death.

2. He is in a better position to advise you than we are.

3. It is not clear which estate you mean.

4. See 2.

5. We see no way to force the matter without court proceedings, which would involve the employment of an attorney.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am interested in purchasing an old house in a small city on which the present owner holds a [1] court title. Will you please explain this and whether it is as good as another title. I understand from neighbors the old gentleman acquired the house by loaning money to the original owners for a year. At the end of the time when the money was not paid he offered an additional hundred dollars for them to sign off the property to him, [2] which they did. He [3], of course, says the house was willed to him. However, as it is an old house it needs improvements.

4. If I put them in could some one with the original deed then claim it? Would like to buy it as it is cheap, and want to live in that particular town. I am not in position to pay cash for it.

5. Can you recommend any firm who would take a mortgage on it?

6. Does the Home Owners' Loan corporation do this, or [7] do they just have certain times when they loan money? F. C. S.

1. It is not clear what you mean by a court title. We will assume that you mean a sheriff's deed under either a foreclosure or an execution sale. There is no reason why it should not be as good as any other title, but, on the other hand, there is no reason why it should be better than other titles, and in general we advise a purchaser of real estate to employ an attorney.

2. As we understand this, he holds his title by a quitclaim deed, and we do not understand why you call it a court title.

3. We do not understand why you say "of course."

4. You would run this risk, unless you have an attorney examine the title.

5. No, you should take the matter up with local building and loan associations and banks.

6. No.

7. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THE U. S. ARMY AND THE LEWIS GUN.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Some time ago you published an editorial, "Will It Happen Again?" [Dec. 30, 1937], in which your writer made the statements, "The Bourbonism of the American ordnance direction of that period cost many lives of American soldiers," and again, "Veterans of the A. E. F. and other Americans who know something of the history of our ordnance in the great conflict have not forgotten that our infantry had to use the very inferior Chauchat [machine gun] because ordnance department jealousy had prevented the adoption and manufacture of the Lewis gun, an American invention which the British adopted and used. . . ."

The writer of that article is not very familiar with the facts of the case. Capt. [later Col.] Lewis had sold controling interest in his gun to the Automatic Arms company, a group of Belgian bankers, and it was first offered to the board of ordnance in 1912 with certain limitations. It was tried out in September, 1913, along with seven other different models of automatic machine guns, in which test it failed dismally. The United States army at that time was armed with a light Hotchkiss, called Benet-Mercie, also called the Springfield model, 1909. At this test all of the competing guns were eliminated except the Benet-Mercie and the Vickers, and of these two a field test was made in 1914, which resulted in the selection of the Vickers gun.

The next test was in 1916, two Lewis guns competing, one using British ammunition and the other American. The one using British ammunition jammed 314 times in two hours, and the one using American ammunition broke down completely. The manufacturer had to withdraw it, stating that "they considered it useless to continue the test." In this test the Vickers also was superior.

Is that the kind of a gun you would wish the ordnance department to adopt for American soldiers, when there were better ones to be had?

Another test by officers in the army and not in the ordnance was conducted in 1916, between the Benet-Mercie [the gun the United States was discarding] and the Lewis gun, and found the Benet-Mercie was the superior gun. A detailed report of their findings was sent to the Army and Navy Journal and to the commanding officer, Gen. William Crozier of the ordnance.

The School of Musketry submitted a report Jan. 7, 1917, on thirteen Lewis guns used in firing: "The Lewis gun in its present [1917] state of development is not believed to be a satisfactory weapon for issue to our service as an automatic rifle or 'first line gun.'" The report was signed by Col. [afterward Maj. Gen.] R. M. Blatchford. Gen. John J. Pershing also said: "The Lewis gun has failed to demonstrate its superiority over the Benet-Mercie [the gun we were discarding] in so far as it is suitable for use with the machine gun organization." [March 1, 1917.]

The Chauchat or "Cho-Cho" automatic rifle was the official light machine gun of the French, the finest builders of artillery in the world, and was not an inferior gun, but one of the best of its type in the world at that time. It was used for a different purpose entirely than the Lewis gun, weighing about sixteen pounds, while the Lewis weighed about twenty-six pounds.

It was not the fault of the ordnance corps that we were so poorly prepared, and poorly armed. You can put that up to the senate, as they did not appropriate any money for machine guns in 1914. Therefore, the ordnance had to wait until 1915 to get money to make or buy the machine guns the ordnance had decided on in 1913. Then the appropriation was for only $150,000, so they could not buy very many machine guns at $3,000 apiece. That was at a time when all Europe was at war and our peace loving President was writing love letters to England and Germany. So you see the responsibility was not that of the ordnance but with the committee on military affairs, of which Senator Chamberlain was the chairman.

SONJA THE NEREID.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 2.—I always felt I could depend on Mae Tinée, but I have just seen Sonja Henie in "Happy Landing," and for sheer grace I do not think anything on the screen has ever equaled it. I stayed until I was in danger of missing the last train, and I intend to see it again.

Of course, Mae has a just quarrel with her headline writer, who wrote, "'Happy Landing' Makes No Dent on Our Critic." What Mae really wrote was "the story makes no dent on my interest." She said the cast was "a humdinger," and the "picture well worth seeing."

But, do you need a great story for a great production? I think it is one of the least essential factors where great art is concerned. Many of our greatest operas have the weakest and most incredible stories. What is the "story" of a great piece of Greek art? There is none; there it stands, or you make up countless stories as you gaze in awe upon it.

The skating scene, showing the tip-toe dancing, in my humble opinion is nothing short of Greek art at its best. Sonja Henie is really a Nereid who sheds graceful and carefree beauty about as she trips lightly on the waters. What a delicious sight!

When art is so pure no sophistry is needed to support it. HAROLD BRECK.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 30.—I have read with great interest and fascination the article in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Jan. 30 pertaining to the romantic activities at the University of Illinois.

I have now been enrolled at the university for three years, and I would like to utter at this time the popular phrase, "98 per cent of the women in the United States are beautiful, and the other 2 per cent come to Illinois."

I believe that this is especially pertinent at this time, because the article leaves a distorted conception of feminine pulchritude on this campus.

FIXED COAL PRICE MAY SHUT PAPER PLANT IN PEORIA

$125,000 Pay Roll Periled by Code Schedules.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—How the new coal code prices are discriminating against Illinois manufacturing plants and threatening to drive employers to other states where lower prices have been fixed by the national bituminous coal commission was explained by a manufacturer here today.

E. W. Weston, secretary of the Terre Haute Paper company, which has plants here and at Terre Haute, Ind., said that a disproportionate increase in Peoria coal prices will make it necessary for the company to close the Peoria plant or operate it only to fill orders beyond the capacity of its Indiana mills.

The company, which manufactures straw paper and tube board, employs 85 men at its plant here, with an annual pay roll of about $125,000.

Wide Difference in Costs.

"Coal is an important factor in our operating costs, as it takes from 2,700 to 2,900 pounds of coal to produce 2,000 pounds of paper," said Weston. "Under the new price schedules one Terre Haute mill is able to buy its coal for $1.91 a ton delivered and the other at $2.10, while the price at the Peoria mill is $2.52 a ton."

He said that before the code became effective the Terre Haute and Peoria plants were paying approximately the same price for the coal consumed by each, and were producing paper at about the same price per ton.

Weston said that the minimum price at Fulton county mines on the fuel used at the mill here is $1.85 a ton and the freight rate 67 cents, making a total of $2.52 a ton. The code price of coal used at the company's south mill at Terre Haute, he continued, is $1.41 a ton and the freight rate 50 cents, making a delivered price of $1.91 a ton.

90 Day Trial Period.

"We purchased the Peoria plant in 1933 for filling overflow orders, but we have spent $50,000 since last June on modernization to make this a low cost plant," he said. "Now we are placed at a disadvantage of 50 or 60 cents a ton on coal costs over the Indiana plants.

"We are going to run for 90 days to determine our production costs and then decide what to do."

Peoria manufacturers have been placed at a disadvantage under the code schedules not only to plants outside Illinois but to those within the state as well, according to Peter J. Naughton, trafic manager of the Peoria Association of Commerce.

Natural Advantage Removed.

"Purely artificial price fixing has deprived us of the natural advantage of location near coal mines," Naughton said.

He asserted that at Springfield, for example, coal is available to Springfield industries at lower prices than Peoria manufacturers can buy Peoria coal because of what he said was an improper freight rate schedule here. Peoria manufacturers have to pay 42 cents more a ton than Springfield mills, although the coal is mined near by, he said.

Naughton estimated that the increase in prices under the code has added $800,000 a year to the coal bill of Peoria industrial consumers.

COAL COMMISSION TO DEFEND PRICE SCHEDULE TODAY

Attorneys for the national bituminous coal commission will appear before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today to show why a temporary injunction should not be issued to prevent the enforcement in Illinois of the commission's price fixing scale.

A petition for the order was made last week by Attorney George T. Evans, representing seven mine owning coal companies in Illinois which have declared that the coal commission's acts are discriminatory. The hearing will be held before Judges Evan A. Evans, Will M. Sparks, and J. Earl Major.

BEGIN FREE TESTS TODAY IN DRIVE TO FIND SYPHILIS

27 Stations Available for 5 Week Campaign.

The board of health today will begin a five week campaign to find unknown sources of syphilis infection in Chicago. Neighborhood clinics will be open daily except Sunday until March 12. Tests will be free and secret.

Four groups of city physicians and nurses will be on duty at twenty-seven stations during the campaign. The clinics giving tests today are at Diversey and Avers avenues, 311 South Kedzie avenue, 26th street and Wentworth avenue, 4253 South State street —all open from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.— and 4647 North Clark street, which will be open from noon to 5 p. m.

Appeal for Use of Facilities.

A special appeal to use these facilities has been made to social and welfare organizations whose leaders pledged support to the mayor's anti-syphilis committee. The district stations of the Chicago Relief administration on Saturday began distributing appeal letters and test application cards with relief checks to its 225,000 clients. The distribution will continue during February. WPA timekeepers will distribute the letters and cards to their 70,000 workers.

The cards are the same as the 300,000 distributed last fall in the public schools and several thousands distributed to other agencies for presentation to private physicians.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, chairman of the campaign, said the test, involving the painless removal of a small quantity of blood from the arm, is essential to protect the individual and the public. Early detection assures the individual of an 85 per cent chance of a cure and prevents spread of the disease to others.

27 Stations Make Tests.

Each of the twenty-seven testing stations will be open on the same day for five successive weeks, beginning this week. The days, addresses, and hours follow:

Mondays—Diversey and Avers, 311 South Kedzie, 26th and Wentworth, 4253 South State, open 9 to 1 o'clock, and 4647 North Clark, 12 to 5 o'clock.

Tuesdays—Montrose and Western, 6100 Fullerton, 2009 Walnut, 9 to 5, and 1700 West 69th, 12 to 5.

City Polo Fans Await Cornell, Harvard Game

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOSE polo enthusiasts who flocked south to the 124th Field Artillery armory Saturday night to see Yale play the 124th team will be going to the same armory on March 12 to see two eastern teams play, Cornell and Harvard. Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr., commanding officer of the 124th, has been trying for years to get two eastern teams out here at the same time and at last his efforts are successful.

Yale, Harvard, Cornell, and Princeton all have sent teams to play against local poloists, but never before have Chicagoans had a chance to see two teams from eastern colleges compete in Chicago, so it is safe to predict there will be a record crowd at the armory for the match.

Julia Patterson Engaged to Ralph W. Applegate.

The twenty-four young women invited to luncheon by Miss Julia Patterson Saturday afternoon were more pleased than surprised to hear her mother, Mrs. Wayne Wills, announce her engagement to Ralph W. Applegate, for young Mr. Applegate has been Miss Patterson's constant escort for many months.

The engagement was to have been announced at a luncheon two weeks ago, but an emergency appendectomy performed upon Miss Patterson interrupted those plans. The wedding will take place in June, after Miss Patterson's cousin, Mrs. Giuseppe Fantacci [Marjorie Moore] returns from Italy where she and her husband are spending three months, partly on business, partly on pleasure.

Miss Patterson and her cousin attended the Latin School for Girls and the Casa Alta school in Florence, Italy. They were introduced jointly to society at a ball at the Blackstone during the Christmas holidays a year ago. The Fantaccis, who were married in October, live in New York.

Mr. Applegate, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Applegate of Kansas City, and his fiancée will live in Chicago, for he is in business here. Mr. Applegate was graduated from Princeton in 1930 and spent a few months traveling abroad. He also attended the Columbia university law school. For the last several months he and Colin Campbell have been sharing bachelor quarters at 900 North Michigan avenue.

New Gadgetry Comes to Town on Every Train

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Nothing but gadgetry, but what gadgets. They make any costume you wear something to talk about. First the tiny gold metal pins in sign language. They're about an inch long, smart to wear in twos or threes on your suit lapels or chests. You can have your initials or words of three or four letters. These also come in glittering tiny rhinestones with the finger nails in brilliant red enamel.

Other pins to shop are the clip or pins with four heads in bright color, a sort of an international lineup—a Mexican, a Chinese coolie head, colored person, and so on. Indian heads, headdress and all, come in rhinestones and colored enamel, and the Donald Duck pins and money clips are going out fast.

Listen to the gasps over the current showing of new hat pins; not the murderous stabbers of a decade ago but refined instruments about 4 inches long with decorative tops. Most of them are in filagree gold, with colored contrasts of black, red, green, or pearl beads. Because the newest hats are made with shallow crowns and darn little anchorage such trick hatpins prove helpful as well as ornamental.

The largest pins are the silver or gold metal pins in the shape of thistles, effective for coat or suit lapel. Cheerful yellow pineapple pins are complete to green tops. And the shops even show you tropical plumed parrots to pin to a suit jacket or at the deep vee of a dark wool dress. All the bright new ideas are flourishing now in time for the early suit season.

Works of Two Noted Venetian Painters Exhibited at Institute

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There are three new exhibitions in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The first rooms have been given up to paintings and drawings by Giambattista and Giandomenico Tiepolo, two Venetian painters who are recognized as having played an important part in the era of Venetian painting which blazed to its full in the 17th century. These men were the last of that particular school.

There are forty paintings and sixty-five drawings in the show. The paintings are light in color and are a bit overwhelmed by the dull gray background against which they have had to be hung. They would be richer and more sparkling were they against cream or a rich tapestry. The religious canvases are interesting, but those which deal with more carnal subjects are the more charming. Particularly attractive is the group in which a young girl is rejecting her suitor.

The drawings make a thin line around the walls of the two adjacent galleries.

The Punchinello series by Giandomenico [of which nine drawings are on exhibit] hold the attention of the casual visitor better than the more solid, perhaps, but less knowledgable drawings of Giambattista. These drawings seem to be of such kind as to interest the student or the historian to a keener degree than the art lover who is looking for something beautiful or stunning [such as we get from Rembrandt or Dürer] to enjoy.

The Swedish tercentenary art exhibit is arranged in the following galleries and is most interesting and entertaining. The bits of old Swedish art and the crafts make a fascinating study. There are wood carvings, a drinking horn [from viking days], rugs, tapestries, necklaces, and household utensils which one can enjoy for some little time.

The division of paintings is also well worth while. Here are several stunning paintings by Anders Zorn, delightful landscapes by Prince Eugen, and works by Larsson and Liljefors.

The third exhibit is that of paintings by Nicolai Remisoff, which at first impresses one by its childish qualities and later by its decorative sense. Remisoff has done many stage designs for the Chauve Souris and the Russian ballet, and some of the sketches are shown here. His work is colorful, vivid, and intensely modern.

The exhibitions will continue to March 6.

My Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The Russians HAVE something in V. Litovsky, that splendid young actor who plays the title rôle in this piece!

A slim, boyish chap he is, with a marvelous gift for interpretation. His homely, facile face mirrors myriad emotions in a minute's time, and he LIVES his rôle—not acts it. He IS the strange, stormy, abnormally sensitive, laughter loving, restraint hating, poetic souled dreamer he impersonates, responding like a harp to the moods of others, and, because of this, wretched a good part of the time. . . . He is agile as a monkey, and as mischievous—and, withal, capable of deep and passionate feeling.

I was fascinated by the boy. [He's probably older than he looks.]

The picture details Pushkin's life as a student at the Lyceum, against backgrounds of scenic beauty and interiors that appear to be authentic. . . . It concludes with the lad's final departure from the halls of learning.

An excellent cast supports the young star, and, while propaganda is, of course, injected, "The Young Pushkin" is, by no means, strictly a propagandic photoplay.

English titles are stiff, but comprehensible and, while the film could have been shortened to advantage, it is consistently interesting, and has several arresting moments.

See you tomorrow.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Ain't love grand department, otherwise known as Valentine day suggestions:

1. A heart shaped box of ivory, red and gold, containing four heart shaped flacons of perfume. It's all so darned cute you'd have to see it to appreciate it. It's just got that ever lovin' air about it. The ivory box with gold edges says "To My Valentine," which sounds pretty trite but looks pretty sweet in its red lettering on this particular background.

Inside against white satin there's a red satin heart pierced, as you might expect, with a dashing golden arrow. Set plumb in the middle of this heart of red satin is a heart shaped bottle of perfume of the most subtle, whispering quality, famous for its insidious charm.

Set around this are three other valentine-ish flacons of perfume, in three different but equally exciting fragrances.

2. A small, baby soft suede purse, heart shaped, wherein nestles a flacon of perfume in any one of five famous and winning Russian perfumes. It's inexpensive but a sweet thought in the way of gift tokens.

The little pink suede bag has blue edging, the box is pink and silver, tied up with blue ribbon. It's all very romantic and charming. These are perfumes for which you male shoppers can just reach blindly—every one is as good as it can be and as beautiful as blending and good taste can make it. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Ballet on Love Theme Leaves Critic Puzzled

BY EDWARD BARRY.

After watching with eagle eyes every wiggle and grimace of "All for Love" I still do not know what it is about. This, of course, is not the same as saying that the new ballet does not mean anything.

"All for Love" is the latest product of the wit and imagination of Trudi Schoop. It was presented in afternoon and evening performances at the Studebaker theater yesterday by its creatrix and her diverting troupe.

The difficulty lies in trying to find some unifying idea in a succession of extremely well conceived and well executed scenes. A soapbox orator preaching love at a busy corner, an impish youngster writing the word on a blackboard at school, the comment, "That's love for you," of a bartender in a night club, family love under the Christmas tree, a masked ball with thoughts of love exciting the anonymous dancers, the mother love which steals bread for hungry children, the travesty on love in a cabaret floor show—it seems from all this that the unifying idea is love.

Either I am just dumb and cannot grasp the big thought which informs the ballet, or Trudi Schoop has been deceived into thinking that a number of examples of her exuberant imagination, if they are to be produced effectively in series, must be provided with some far fetched idea to bind them into a whole. She could learn from Morris Bishop that a startling bit of imagination becomes even more startling when it is left hanging unsupported in air.

Trudi Schoop's method, here as in her earlier works, is to mime real life characters in such a way that their hidden characteristics, especially those which lend themselves best to satire, are emphasized in an unmistakable way.

She gladly caricatures institutions as well as people, presenting in the final scene of the new work a floor show to end all floor shows. A reviewer of more delicate sensibilities would doubtless call certain features of this episode decidedly vulgar, but even he would admit the aptness of the vacuous grins and the grotesque routines and postures of the scene.

But because there are definite suggestions of vulgarity in "All for Love," Trudi Schoop should be cautioned against believing all that she has heard in Europe about the tastes of Americans. We do not ask her to spoil any of the delicacy of her art by trying to cater to trans-Atlantic ideas of what our desires in ballet are.

CIVIC ORCHESTRA

The Civic orchestra of Chicago, maintained by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, exists primarily as a training school for players of orchestral instruments. Its few public concerts may properly be considered as by-products. Yet they are great fun.

The one given in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon proved that wise Hans Lange has succeeded in teaching his charges the tricks of professional orchestral playing without spoiling in the process the spontaneity and enthusiasm of these youthful practitioners.

In a Haydn symphony and in Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration" the orchestra played with verve and obvious enjoyment and still preserved the necessary precision and musical style.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

No News, No Scoops, No Nothin'

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—So names make news, huh? . . . When the horse Playmay won at Santa Anita and paid $873 for a $2 ticket, Carole Lombard, Myrna Loy, Clark Gable, Louis B. Mayer, Gracie Allen, Humphrey Bogart, the earl of Warwick, Charlie Chaplin, Tom Girdler, and Herbert Hoover did not have a dime bet on him. . . . Toby Wing will not appear with the Metropolitan opera. . . . Scoop: Hollywood boulevard runs east and west . . . most of the time. . . . What famous femme star and what famous male singer had what words at what night club in what city what night last week over what blonde? . . . If any of you find out, wire me . . . not collect, either. . . . Add oddities: Dorothy Sarang Lamour wears clothes away from the studio. . . . I saw her at the race track. . . . Cary Grant tells me confidentially that he is never hungry after he eats.

Fruit tree cycle of songs started with "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia," and concluded with "The Big Apple." . . . All of which eventually got the raspberry. . . . This will be denied, but I understand that Toscanini always sits down when he has a shave and haircut. . . . You can imagine the disappointment of the groundhog who came out on Feb. 2 and learned that Max Baer was to fight Tommy Farr. . . . Charlie McCarthy is not talking to Edgar Bergen. . . . Inside dope on Joe Schenck's barring of Agent Myron Selznick from the 20th Century-Fox lot is that his brother, Dave Selznick, refused to let Schenck play Rhett Butler in "Gone with the Wind." . . . Ben Blue is white, and generally in the red. . . . I made that up myself.

Exhibitor reports on pictures are always interesting because of their breezy phrasing. . . . J. G. Glendale, manager of the Onyx theater at Pomona, who just played "Rosalie," had this to say: "Gee, whiz." . . . Oscar Thomas, manager of the Palace in Pratt Falls, N. Y., had this to say after "Conquest" played there Friday, Saturday, and Sunday: "Golly." . . . Everett Danton, manager of the Strand at Portland, Ore., says of "Bad Man of Brimstone": "Gosh all hemlock." . . . James G. Blaine, who played "Hurricane" at Little Rock, Ark., writes: "This is the biggest thing since the Johnstown flood. It scared hell out of me."

Add oddities: When Phil Harris leads his band he always stands directly in front of his men. . . . You don't need this sort of coverage from any other columnist, I bet. . . . Helen Jepson held a high note for seven minutes in "Goldwyn Follies." . . . However, you won't hear it on the screen. Goldwyn cut it out to save seven minutes. . . . Bette Davis' secretary is named Of Human Bondage. . . . It was the secretary's unusual name that suggested the title of his book to Somerset Maugham. . . . This will be denied, but what do I care? . . . The white coat which Cesar Romero wears in "Happy Landing" has been sold to Barnum and Bailey for a commissary tent. . . . The deal was closed last night.

Despite the reports of writers returning from New York that that city is all shot to pieces, I understand there are 7,000,000 people still living there. . . . If you go east you should visit it. . . . Add oddities: When Phil Harris leads his band—no, no, I told you that before. . . . Gene Autrey's horse is leading in the Academy award nominations. . . . Stop selling firecrackers, you hear!! . . . The rain came just in time to save the mustache that Groucho Marx has been growing for "Room Service." . . . The drouth almost had it. . . . Mickey Rooney has rented the House of Rothschild. . . . The Seven Dwarfs and Minnie Mouse are an item. . . . Paul Whiteman's real tag is Paul Whiteman. . . . If you dial Mutual 9231 in Los Angeles you get the public library. . . . If a man answers it's the librarian.

Clark Gable was so overpowered by his election as the best dressed man of Hollywood that he put on a necktie. . . . Pretty soon we'll have him wearing shoes. . . . Spencer Tracy comes from Milwaukee. . . . If Tyrone Power doesn't marry Janet Gaynor he's going to make a chump out of a lot of columnists. . . . Add oddities: Anita Louise hasn't any last name and Jon Hall hasn't any first name. . . . There isn't any clover at the Clover club. . . . I'll bet the admirals would be pretty mad if the Pacific fleet ever showed up in the Atlantic ocean.

Add statistics: Bing Crosby has earned more money than Enrico Caruso. . . . Only contract player M.-G.-M. hasn't had trouble with is Leo the lion. . . . His bark is worse than his bite. . . . Al Jolson was the first stage professional to go in for suntanning. . . . He used to ride from California to New York in an open car to get tanned. . . . That is the only line in this column that is on the level, and you won't believe it. . . . More's the pity. . . . Real name of the Ritz brothers is Litzenwurger. . . . They are not Spanish. . . . Local autoist was arrested for doing eighty-one miles an hour in a fifteen mile zone, which gives you an idea. . . . His defense was that his car couldn't do over eighty.

The Housewife

Piles of sheets on a counter look pretty much alike and when their prices are different it's difficult sometimes to tell why. One of the most helpful bits of information we have come across in years is that printed on every package of a certain brand of which its store is justly proud.

These sheets come boxed, a sanitary measure any housewife will appreciate. On the box is printed, "Fine Percale Sheets," and a paragraph stating they have been checked by a quality control inspector and then tested and certified for consumer serviceability by an independent testing laboratory [not one maintained by the store]. Under "What It's Made of" you're told exactly what materials make up this product, and "How It's Made" tells how many threads there are to the square inch and that the sheets have been flame singed to remove lint and fuzz.

You're also told the service you may expect from the sheets and how best to care for them. We congratulate this manufacturer on a fine job of intelligent selling. EDITH WEIGLE.

SYNOPSIS.

Abe McCandless, who framed Poco St. Vrain and made him an outlaw, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents, sent to meet at the mine and bring down the gold, are murdered by two different bands of outlaws. Two-Way Hornbeck, leader of one band, persuades Poco to pose as one of the agents and get the gold. At the mountain camp Poco finds Espey Cardowan, killer gunman, posing as the other agent. They dare not give each other away to Shayne, the mine manager, and his lovely daughter, Kate. On their way down the mountain with the gold Cardowan crowds Poco off the cliff and leaves him for dead. Then Cardowan joins forces with Two-Way. They double-cross their own men and take refuge in an army fort, posing as two prospectors pursued by St. Vrain. They are given an army escort to Rincon. Meanwhile, Kate helps rescue Poco from the bottom of the cliff. He confesses his real identity. Poco promises to recover the gold to save her father from blame. In Rincon, Poco is arrested by Sheriff Hogan on McCandless' order.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A SCARED SHERIF.

Once inside the cell block, Hogan opened a cell door and stood aside.

Poco looked in and shook his head. "Give me one with a window on the street."

Hogan opened another and Poco walked inside. The cot looked comfortable and there was even a dirty pillow on the next blankets.

"I'd like a beer," he said to Hogan.

Hogan cleared his throat. "Listen, St. Vrain. This won't be for long. McCandless will listen. He's got to."

"The beer," Poco said. In his haste to leave, Hogan forgot to take his keys. They dangled on a ring from the lock, jingling a little as their swing faded and died. Poco looked at them and then stretched out on the cot. Here, he believed, a man could sleep undisturbed.

Back in the Maricopa, the quiet faced stranger watched Hogan come in and get the beer and walk out again. He said to the barkeep, "So that was Poco St. Vrain, was it?"

The barkeep said it was, adding gravely, "Nicest spoken jasper I ever knew. I like him, but it don't sound right to say it out loud."

"They'll make it hot for him," the stranger said meditatively.

The barkeep laughed. "Listen," he said, leaning over the bar. "That beer was for him."

"How could you tell?"

"By Hogan's face. Hogan was scared. When Hogan is in such a hurry to take a beer out he won't take one hisself first, then he's scared. And there's only two men he's scared of."

"Who?"

"McCandless and St. Vrain."

Compared with the eight neat, blue uniformed soldiers who, along with the sergeant, constituted their escort, Cardowan and Two-Way looked shabbier than cast-off hats.

The cavalcade had come down out of the mountains that morning and were riding through the foothills now. Two-Way reckoned they were not more than an hour from Rincon. Realizing this, he knew it was time to speak what had been in his mind all morning.

He began on Sergt. Rourke with one of the devious introductions which invariably paved the way to his getting what he wanted.

"That captain of yours over yonder is a white man, all right. He don't mind breakin' rules to help a man."

"He's all right," Rourke agreed, "but he don't break rules."

Two-Way looked mildly surprised. "You mean he never broke a rule by sendin' you men to guard us and our gold?"

"Nah," Rourke said. "That's what the army's for out here—to look after property and people and bring some kind of order. He can use his own judgment about things like this."

"But you men catch it when you use yours. Is that it?"

Rourke spat abstractedly and turned the question over in his mind. "No, I wouldn't say that. We carry out orders, but it don't matter how very much."

"For instance," Two-Way said, "you mean to say that you could go against orders in this case? The captain said to escort me and my partner to Rincon. What if that wasn't very smart?"

"Why ain't it?"

Two-Way pretended to think a minute. "Why, if we was to ride into Rincon with eight soldiers guardin' us, every one would know we had somethin' valuable in them packs. Soon's you soldiers leave, they'd start snoopin'. And as soon as they were sure it was gold, they'd cut our throats in a minute."

Rourke looked at him, scowling.

"But if we was to drift in alone," Two-Way continued, "they'd put us down for a couple of mountain bums and never give us a thought. Ain't that right?"

"Danged if it ain't," Rourke agreed. "It ain't no usual thing for the army to guard a couple of fellas like you."

"Then how about it?" Two-Way said frankly, and he smiled that disarming smile. "You turn back now and we wander into town alone. If the captain asks you about it, tell him we asked to go in alone."

Rourke pulled his horse up and the rest followed suit. They gathered around him while he told them of Two-Way's proposition. The soldiers agreed with their sergeant.

Two-Way brought out a handful of money and tendered it to Rourke, who shook his head. "We're paid by Uncle Sam, mister," he said gravely.

Two-Way smiled. "This is no bribe. Take it. If you won't keep it for yourselves, turn it over to the company mess for a feed."

Put this way, Rourke could hardly refuse. Two-Way thanked them, Cardowan seconding him; they shook hands all around and the detail turned and started back.

Two-Way turned to Cardowan and said in a mock drawl, "Wal, podner, we're on the other side of the mountains. Not bad, huh?"

Cardowan looked around him uneasily at the serrated line of hills stretching below and above and to all sides of him.

"Let's hightail it," he said curtly. "Some of our men might be on our trail now."

Two-Way observed dryly, "What you mean is, you'd feel a lot better packing two guns."

"That's it," Cardowan said.

"So would I," Two-Way agreed.

On their way into town they decided on their next move. They would drift in to the livery stable and while Two-Way was yarning with the stableman, Cardowan would rope each aparejo into a compact bundle. They would leave them at the stage station, unaddressed, as part of their luggage. Their very weight would tell the curious that they couldn't contain gold. That night they would board the stage with their luggage and head south, to Mexico, eventually.

Two-Way fell silent now, thinking, but not putting into words, what would happen when they took the stage out of Rincon. Cardowan would be armed then, and now, since Poco St. Vrain was dead, he would rate as the deadliest gunman at large. Sooner or later, when the chance came, Two-Way knew Cardowan would kill him for the other half of the gold. The thought of this didn't bother Two-Way much. He'd get to Cardowan first. But, above all things, he had to realize that 500 pounds of anything, gold or rocks, was a weight around a man's neck if he had to travel fast. He'd have to wait for a sure chance of quick and fast escape before he cut loose on Cardowan. And what pleased Two-Way most was that he knew Cardowan had figured it out the same way. In their own separate ways, Two-Way conceded soberly, they were both good men—only he was the better.

Woman's State of Mind Is Important to Facial Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"The shape of the face," to quote Alexis Carrel, "the mouth, the cheeks, the eyelids and the lines of the visage are determined by the habitual condition of the flat muscles which move in the adipose tissue underlying the skin. And the state of these muscles depends on that of the mind. . . . Unwittingly, our visage progressively models itself upon our states of consciousness. With the advance of age it becomes more and more pregnant with the feelings, the appetites and the aspirations of the whole being.

"Each man bears on his face the description of his body and soul!"

A serious thought for the day's occupation. For all of us. It is a sermon on beauty for women, and no better sermon could be absorbed by us than the theme that our faces carry the description of our souls and of our bodies.

True, we have been told this same story time and time again. In other words, perhaps, we have been told that the eyes are windows of the soul, that we make or unmake the beauty of our mouths by the thoughts that occupy our minds. But we women try to convince ourselves that massage and high priced creams alone can wipe out the effects of sick minds and bodies.

But we do see in other women, if we won't see it in our own mirror-reflected countenances, that there is more to facial beauty than the helpful use of cosmetics. That harried expression with which so many faces are marked today can be combatted only with a philosophy of life in tune with a simpler plan of living. Behind that harried expression is the desire to do too much, to have a lot more than is needed, to keep up with people better financially equipped for show.

Those turned down mouth corners that etch lines deeply are what? What do they represent in the way of beauty destruction? Discontent, envy, gloom or long neglected items of health.

Let us women do a little more thinking about what our thoughts, our feelings are doing to our faces. Let's do a little more mirror-peering, not for facial blemishes, but for character faults.

Honor the Memory of Sir Henry Irving, Born 100 Years Ago

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Numerous celebrities of the English stage, elderly persons who "remembered" him and hundreds of others who know only his fame, today celebrated the centenary of the birth of Sir Henry Irving. One of the most outstanding actors of the Victorian era, he was the first actor to be knighted and is now buried in Westminster abbey.

A crowd of more than 1,000 filled the church of St. Martin in the fields where a service of commemoration was held, and a huge throng gathered outside. After the service, wreaths were placed at the base of Irving's statue nearby. Later a company of forty actors and actresses connected with the old Lyceum theater, with which Irving had been associated, made a pilgrimage to Westminster abbey.

In the tiny Somerset village of Keinton Handeville where Irving was born, a commemoration service was held also. This week a memorial exhibition of Irving relics will be opened at the London museum and also at Stratford-on-Avon.

'Be Your Age' May Be Good Advice, but He's a Doubter

"Be your age," it seems, is not always infallible advice. Dr. Joseph C. Rheingold says that emotional coming of age sometimes may be almost the worst thing that can happen to one. "Some of our most successful politicians and business men are still a long way from it, fortunately for them," says Dr. Rheingold. "They achieve success by blinding themselves to the problems the world presents." He will tell more about it tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium in the second in a series of lectures sponsored by the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

Grandmother's kitchen was a huge, homey place with a worn board floor hard to scrub. Her coal stove was in one corner and her cupboards and makeshift sink in the other. She walked miles and miles during the day, from stove to pantry to sink to table and back again. Her pots and pans were dented, blackened on the bottom and awkward looking, but they cooked good food, and that was what counted.

Your and my kitchens are smaller and cozier, easier to keep clean, planned for convenience and step saving. Our pots and pans are both useful and pretty, and often as not carry out a gay color scheme beginning with ruffled curtains and finishing with shining linoleum.

Grandmother may have had a few pieces of enamelware in her kitchen, but if she did they most certainly were not beautiful and were chipped around the edges. If she could see enamelware today!

It's lovely enough to leave on open shelves as decoration for the kitchen. It comes in colors even in white with red, blue, yellow, or green covers. It is smooth, unchipable, and the corners are rounded and slick. Instead of being wide at the top and small on the bottom, as the old utensils were, these new pans are wide bottomed and straight sided. They save heat and they won't tip.

One of the best enamelwares I know about takes pride in the measuring scales marked on the inside of each pan. If a recipe asks you to scald two cups of milk you don't need to measure it in a cup. You simply pour milk into the pan until it reaches the level marked two cups.

The double boiler is my favorite in this particular ware. The lower part is full and deep and the top part has a rounded bottom, which makes beating double boiler puddings easy. The blades of the beater easily reach all parts of the mixture, since there are no corners into which it can't get.

Since my kitchen is red and white, for the most part, the enamelware which I use is white, with red covers. Although the double boiler is choice, I like also the pretty saucepans in several sizes, the covered kettle, the tea kettle, and the percolator.

Enamelware is made on a base of steel, which reminds me of the new stainless steel which is gaining such popularity. I have several utensils of stainless steel, too, and they are wonderfully convenient.

Stainless steel is used widely in hospitals and food manufacturing plants, because it is extremely sanitary, and because it is easy to keep looking well. There is but one precaution to take when cooking with stainless steel: do not overheat the metal, as it turns dark and never will regain its former brightness. But this is a simple care to take. There is no reason to heat cooking utensils to a degree which will cause this reaction.

If you are contemplating the purchase of new kitchenware, and would like more information or the names of good brands to buy, I shall be glad to be of assistance. Telephone or write to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Does he like pie? Then he'll rave about those made from the recipes in the "Tribune booklet "Pies He'll Rave About" on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street, for 3 cents; by mail, 5 cents in stamps. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

Styled for Sizes Up to 50

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This dress with the softly draped bodice is one which women who wear up to size 50 will appreciate. It's a youthful model, however, and if you wear size 16 you will like it, too. There are many features about the frock that are attractive on slim figures and also are immensely flattering to silhouettes which need a bit of pruning. For example, the shirring in the waist sector minimizes excess weight through the bust, and the flat waistline portion is designed especially to slenderize. You will like the skirt, it has figure hugging styling, yet develops plenty of comfortable width once the hemline is reached.

The sleeves are squared off at the shoulders, a trick that makes the waist seem delightfully small by contrast. You may have the sleeves wrist length or terminate them above the elbow and allow them to expand to their full width.

If you're staying in the north you might make this dress of any conservative print or monotone crêpe. In case you're planning a journey south you might consider using a bright cotton or washable silk print.

Style No. 2009 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

British Fear Disney Film May Upset Little Children

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The British film censors have decided that children under the age of 16 cannot see Walt Disney's animated movie, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," unless they are accompanied by adults. The Sunday Graphic says that British children apparently are held to be more easily upset by fairy stories than their "tougher American cousins."

800 Leaders in Religious Education Meet This Week

Nearly 800 educational leaders of thirty-nine Protestant denominations will convene all this week in the Stevens hotel for the annual meeting of the international council of religious education. Dr. Roy G. Ross, executive secretary of the council, said the week's work will be composed largely of making plans and programs for youth organizations and Sunday schools for the coming year.

Polish Artists Win Praise in Debut Recital

BY CECIL SMITH.

Under auspices of the Polish Arts club, Paula Zwane, soprano, and Edward Grabinski, tenor, shared a highly successful début recital in Kimball hall yesterday afternoon. The sponsoring organization, organized in 1926 to foster appreciation of Polish art in America and to help promising Polish and American artists, selected its protégés by holding auditions last fall.

Miss Zwane is fortunate enough to possess the kind of soprano voice nearly every one likes to hear. Ample in volume and warm in texture, it opens out with impressive power at the top. Her schooling in tone production is good as far as it goes. As yet she has not achieved full control of her voice at all times, and there is often an unpremeditated wildness about her singing that keeps the listener on the edge of his chair—in the wrong frame of mind.

In the matter of interpretation her art is still a bit callow. She seemed acquainted with the notes of her music, and even with many of the traditions of its performance. But she evidently has not studied music long or thoroughly enough yet to give a full ring of authority to her style.

Mr. Grabinski has reached a similar point in his development. His voice is solid, even, and likable in quality. Defects of production hamper him, both at the top where the tone is not free and at the bottom where it is thick. His interpretative style is assured even when it is wrong. A constant gyrating corkscrew motion of his body while he sings does not add to his visual appeal.

In an afternoon largely given over to the exploits of young musicians, Fritz Siegal, 20 years old, concert master of the Illinois Symphony orchestra, won quite an ovation at the Great Northern theater. With the orchestra under the baton of Isler Solomon he played the difficult solo part of the Sibelius violin concerto. Playing with beautiful tone and expert technique—except for a few minor slips in pitch—he showed a remarkably mature understanding of the deeply expressive music.

Mr. Solomon conducted the concerto with magnificent command. The orchestra was on its toes, and turned out a big time performance. The purely orchestral items of the program were the Lully-Motti "Ballet Suite" and John Alden Carpenter's whimsical "Adventures in a Perambulator."

The Associated Cultural groups gave Tschaikowsky's opera "Eugene Onegin" at the Goodman theater last night. Solo singing, chorus, costumes, and settings were always acceptable and sometimes better than that.

The Pro Arte String quartet will give the second of four free concerts in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago tonight. The program lists quartets by Alessandro Scarlatti, Vivaldi and Milhaud, and Mozart's E-flat horn quintet, with Helen Kotas playing the horn part.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I am inclosing an interesting hand in which the use of an opening two bid, followed by the correct response, and later aided by asking bids as well as a bit of horse play, finally brought my partner and myself a juicy score. This was the hand:

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A K 9 7 5
♥ A K 9 8 7 6 3
♦ A
♣ None

WEST
♠ Q 10 6
♥ J
♦ Q 9 8 7 6
♣ K 10 6 4

EAST
♠ J 3 2
♥ 10
♦ K J 4
♣ A J 9 8 7 3

SOUTH
♥ Q 6 4 2
♦ 10 5 3 2
♣ Q 5 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2 hearts	Pass	4 hearts [1]	Pass
4 spades [2]	Pass	4 no tr'p [3]	Pass
5 clubs [4]	Double	5 no tr'p [5]	Pass
7 hearts [6]	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble [7]	Pass	Pass	Pass

"I take the liberty of giving you the reasoning back of the numbered bids.

"1. A jump raise to an opening two bid, denoting no high card holding above a queen, at least four to the queen of partner's suit, and no blank suit or singleton in the hand.

"2. An asking bid, since hearts have been definitly agreed upon.

"3. Since my jump raise denoted no singleton or king, North cannot be asking for second round control and, therefore, must want to know about third spade control, hence my four no trump answer, showing third round spade control.

"4. This, of course, was just a trap for the opponents. North wanted to start them doubling and keep them doubling right up to the finish.

"5. Not knowing what is going on, but holding third round club control, I answered conventionally.

"6. The grand slam must be a lay-down, since we have eleven cards between us and I can take care of North's losing spades.

"7. The double having materialized as hoped for, North now comes down with the big stick.

"It is a shame that one of the most picturesque and colorful parts of the game, the employment of asking bids, has not been taken up more generally. Believe me, in many a big hand asking bids are the only insurance policy that one can get.

There is no doubt but that the hand was well bid, even to the extent of coaxing a double from the opponents. Although, as I have announced, asking bids have been removed from the basic structure of the Culbertson system to a special appendix, I say again what I have said so often, that partnerships interested in getting the last ounce out of their cards with safety should study and use this invaluable slam bidding device.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Once again the folks out in Utah are experiencing "that old feeling."

In the midst of the Golden Gloves fighting in Ogden, where a team was being picked for the Tournament of Champions, opening in the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28, the thing happened.

Watching a home town boy, Lamar Pearce, knock out four opponents in the first round, the old emotions began pounding through the spectators' veins. Could it be that they were sending another Jack Dempsey into the world of fisticuffs?

He Got the Job.

The four knockouts naturally were sufficient to land Pearce a place on the Ogden Standard-Examiner's team. And he's ready now to head for the world's greatest boxing tournament in Chicago.

Pearce will represent Ogden in the 175 pound division. But he's a growing youngster and, like Dempsey, probably will be a heavyweight within another year. Pearce is only 18 years old and is a student at Ogden High school.

He might have been forced to carry on as a heavyweight this year but for the presence in the Utah fighting ranks of 230 pound Bryce Thorne, an athlete from the University of Utah. This young giant towers 6 feet 3 inches and tosses his powerful punches with considerable more skill than most amateur boxers do.

It's a Growing Giant.

A majority of the boys on the Utah team are Mormons. The growth of the Ogden tournament has been one of the most remarkable in Golden Gloves history.

Last year, when the first tournament was conducted there, only twenty-nine boys entered the meet. Only three of the champions were permitted to make the trip to the Tournament of Champions. This year there were 300 contestants and a complete team is to enter the title meet. Members of the team:

112 POUNDS—Alvin Barker, Ogden.
118 POUNDS—Remo Polidoro, Tooele, Utah.
126 POUNDS—Paul Lane, Ogden.
135 POUNDS—Hal Peterson, Ogden.
147 POUNDS—Carl Jacob, University of Utah, Salt Lake City.
160 POUNDS—Grant Hansen, Salt Lake City.
175 POUNDS—Lamar Pearce, Ogden.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Bryce Thorne, University of Utah, Salt Lake City.

Fight Colorado First.

Before making the trip to the Tournament of Champions, the Utah team will fight the champions of Colorado in Ogden on Feb. 24.

Chicago amateur boxers who fight in the west section tournament will put in their final training licks today. Their section tournament opens in the Madison Athletic club arena at 7 o'clock on Wednesday night. It will continue on Thursday night and wind up with semi-final round battles on Feb. 17 and 18. The fighting in the other sectional tournaments in Chicago will start next week.

MANDERS KICKS FIELD GOAL AND RUNS 58 YARDS

Referee—Mann, Springfield. Umpire—Harkness, Tennessee. Head linesman—Goldstein, Florida. Field judge—Spain, Florida.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Chicago's Bears, driving fiercely all afternoon, gained some measure of revenge today on the world champion Washington Redskins by whipping them, 16 to 10, in the first major mid-winter professional football game played in Florida. Approximately 8,000 saw the game.

The Bears, with Jack Manders, Ray Nolting, and Sam Francis supplying the power, and Keith Molesworth giving a brilliant exhibition of open field running after catching passes from Ray Buivid, scored touchdowns in the second and fourth periods. Manders kicked a field goal in the third.

Redskins Take Lead.

Washington took the lead on a thirty yard field goal by Riley Smith in the second quarter. Its touchdown was scored with seconds to play as Wayne Millner intercepted Bull Doehring's feeble attempt to pass and ran about four yards over the goal. Riley Smith kicked the extra point.

The game was bitterly fought throughout, four fist fights enlivening the play.

The fights, Chicago entries named first: George Wilson vs. Bob McChesney, Russ Thompson vs. Les Olsson, Milton Trost vs. Chuck Bond, and Ed Manske vs. Don Irwin. All were draws.

Baugh Hurt, Battles Out.

Chicago scored on a sustained drive from its own 10 yard line in the second quarter and Francis ran thirty-three yards with an intercepted pass for another touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Washington's touchdown was more or less a gift. Doehring foolishly attempted to pass when he was knocked down on his own 5 yard line with only 25 seconds to play. Millner picked the ball out of the air and stepped over the goal.

The Redskins, who meet the College All-Stars in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's annual game at Soldiers' field in Chicago on Aug. 31, were weakened by the loss of Cliff Battles, the National league's leading ground gainer, an infection in a cut on his face causing doctors to forbid him to play. Sammy Baugh, Washington's passing paragon, was out of the game most of the second half, after having been well shaken up by Dick Plasman and George Musso as he was attempting to pass. The Bears were noticeably alert in covering Sammy's receivers, however, his only successful passes being short shots over the line.

Manders Breaks Away.

The Bears first half touchdown was set up by Manders, the big back returning the kickoff—after Smith's placekick—fifty-eight yards to the Redskins' 37 yard line. Manders was prevented from going all the way by Baugh, who blocked out a Bear, permitting Irwin to bring down the ball carrier.

From there the Bears marched across the goal. Nolting ripped through the center of the line three times for twenty-one yards and Manders picked up eleven on two plays off tackle.

With the ball on the 5 yard line, Molesworth plunged four yards to the 1 yard line and then squirmed across for the touchdown. Manders' kick for the extra point went over the bar and on into the huge ice plane under construction for Sonja Henie's appearance a week hence.

Jack Misses One Attempt.

Smith's place kick, with the ball on the 30 yard line, culminated a series of futile drives by both teams. Washington drove to the Bears' 12 yard line as the first quarter ended. Following Nolting's punt out, the Redskins carried the ball to the 33 yard line, where the Bears held. Smith then dropped back and kicked the champions into the lead.

Late in the game, with Buivid passing, Molesworth got away for runs of twenty-seven and twenty-nine yards. His last dash carried the ball to the Redskins' 21 yard line, from where Manders missed a placekick.

It was after this that the Redskins marched to the Bears' 17 yard line. Smith fired passes of twenty and twenty-five yards to Peterson, and Peterson hit the line for good gains. Doehring's attempted pass was made after the Bears held and took the ball.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Big Ten conference unquestionably has done more to develop intercollegiate athletics and at the same time to keep sport in its proper place in the educational scheme than any other similar organization in the United States. . . . It unswervingly has followed a course toward sanity in athletic administration through an era that has produced charges of hypocrisy and a clamor for out and out subsidization. . . . It is easy to distort the facts and make college athletics appear to be strictly a commercial racket. . . . A growing number of newspaper men have had a part in the spread of these ideas for whatever stipend they might receive from national magazines or syndicates. . . . Few of them who have taken time to investigate actually believe what they write.

Louis Boudreau.

John T. McGovern.

Not that it makes any difference, but we have cited these facts to show we are almost wholly in accord with the eligibility code observed by members of the Big Ten conference. . . . But this department has found no satisfactory explanation of the ruling which last week deprived Louis Boudreau, captain of the University of Illinois basketball team, of his right to represent his alma mater ni intercollegiate sport. . . . The faculty committee's decision, it is reported, was based on the fact that Boudreau's mother had been receiving money monthly from the Cleveland Indians in return for the athlete's promise that he would join the club after his graduation. . . . Boudreau chose Illinois voluntarily as the school he wished to attend. . . . The Indians, who had heard of his baseball talent, were willing to let him finish his course at their expense on the gamble that some day he might be a big league player. . . . They made no effort to induce him to leave the university before completing his studies, a practice all too common by major league clubs.

What's wrong with letting Boudreau obtain an education in such a manner? . . . We heard John T. McGovern, legal counsel for the Carnegie Foundation, author of the famous Bulletin No. 23, encourage the idea of wealthy alumni picking out a deserving athlete and sending him through college. . . . He insisted it not only was a display of loyalty to one's alma mater but also a service to the country. . . . There was no organized effort on the part of the Cleveland baseball club to send promising athletes to Illinois or elsewhere. . . . Boudreau was an isolated individual. . . . And what is wrong or un-American about letting a boy get an education at the expense of an institution that is willing to gamble on his baseball talent two, three, or four years later? . . . The really un-American thing, it seems to us, is to make intercollegiate sport available only to those whose fathers have enough money to pay all the bills.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The sorely tried Chicago Blackhawks, who have had more than enough trouble of late in their National Hocky league endeavors, last night reached a new nadir in despair when they lost a 7 to 2 decision to the big, bad Boston Bruins in the Stadium before 13,000.

Losing a 7 to 2 hocky contest, the equivalent of a 15 to 0 licking in baseball, would be galling enough in itself, but, just to add salt to the open wounds of the Chicagoans, the Detroit Red Wings were rising to an eight goal hysteria in their shutout triumph against the Montreal Canadiens at about the time the Hawks were enduring their trouncing.

Playoff Chances Suffer.

This pair of results left the Hawks a miserable half game ahead of the Wings in the league standings, and forecast another opportunity to look at the Stanley cup playoffs from the outside late next month.

The evening reached a climax in the 16th minute of the second period when the radicals in the upper reaches of the stadium unloosed an avalanche of fruit, peanuts, and paper in protest of the ejection of Johnny Gottselig by Referee Mickey Ion. It was twenty minutes, the length of a regulation period, before order was restored. During this spell, both teams went below stairs until calm had been arranged.

It Wasn't Even Close.

The Hawks had more shots than the Bruins, but could not click until the 54th minute of the game when Ivan Nicholson, on loan from the Kansas City club, finally drove home the puck. Paul Thompson then con-

Purdue Meets Illinois Tonight; Scents Tie for Lead in Big Ten

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This is the night when Purdue expects to tie Northwestern for the leadership in the Western conference. Each team has been defeated once, but an advantage in number of games on the early schedule so far has created a percentage leadership for the Wildcats.

Saturday night Purdue whipped its Hoosier state rival, Indiana, before 8,500 in the Boilermakers' new fieldhouse. It was Purdue's twenty-second victory in twenty-seven games with Indiana since the war, but the final result: Purdue, 38; Indiana, 36, is better evidence of the parity of Indiana state basketball than victories won and lost.

Victory Is Important.

Victory for Purdue tonight in Lafayette in the second game of the series with Illinois would tie the Boilermakers with the Wildcats, who do not resume their conference campaign until Saturday, when they meet Wisconsin at Madison.

Illinois is the only team to defeat Purdue this year, in conference or nonconference play. The Illini, beaten by Indiana and Michigan, bounced back to trounce Purdue, 51 to 43, on Jan. 10 in Champaign. That was the battle of forty fouls, twenty-three of them committed by Purdue, and a near riot.

Illinois held a 29 to 13 lead at the half and maintained control of the game principally by the splendid work of Pick Dehner, center, who scored eighteen points. But tonight Dehner and Capt. Lou Boudreau will be absent. Both are ineligible, so if Illinois again stops Purdue it will be time to land the marines at Lafayette with a dozen strait jackets.

Purdue's veteran high scoring team in many respects resembles the quintet at Notre Dame. When the Irish try they are very, very good, and when they stop to think of their splendid three year record, they are apt to be very, very horrible.

Irish Were Good This Time.

Saturday night, in the concluding game with Pittsburgh, once an outstanding intercollegiate rivalry, Notre Dame was very, very good. Johnny Moir and Paul Nowak scored nineteen of Notre Dame's fifty-one points. All the other regulars were hitting and defensively Notre Dame held Pitt to seventeen points. Notre Dame plays at Marquette Wednesday night.

Michigan and Wisconsin, each with two conference defeats, enviously eye the Big Ten leaders and cheer all opponents of Northwestern and Purdue. Michigan does not play until Saturday and then against Michigan State. But Wisconsin, beaten by Northwestern and Purdue, meets Indiana in Bloomington tonight and then entertains Northwestern Saturday night in Madison. The Badgers warmed up Saturday night with a victory over Michigan State.

James Birr of Indianapolis, center, and four reserve players were lost to the Indiana squad yesterday for the remainder of the season because of scholastic difficulties.

Buckeyes Visit Midway.

The reserves declared ineligible were Jack Stevenson of Indianapolis and Lyman Abbott of Martinsville, forwards, and James Fausch of Michigan City and Ed Page of Shelbyville, guards.

Ohio State, which can blame all its conference basketball troubles on Michigan and Northwestern, holds a .500 average, however, and whipped Iowa for a second time Saturday night. It meets Chicago on the Midway tonight. The Buckeyes should whip the Maroons, who have lost four conference games, to add to the last two seasons in which Chicago has not whipped a Big Ten team.

Chicago has shown flashes of offen-

REVOLTA SHOOTS 290 TO TRIUMPH AT SACRAMENTO

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., won the $3,000 Sacramento open tournament today with a 72 hole total of 290.

Revolta capped his final round with a 72, even par for the municipal course, to pass up earlier leaders. In the morning he had shot a 73, while he put together first and second rounds of 72 and 73.

The victory netted Revolta $750 and put him well in the lead as the top money winner of the winter tournament swing.

Revolta, former Professional Golfers' association champion and twice member of the Ryder cup team, opened the present tour with a victory in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore tournament last December.

John's Doing Very Well.

He has won $5,250 to date.

Revolta's total score was two strokes over par for the 72 holes.

One stroke behind the leader came Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., whose last two rounds of 69 and 73 brought him a total of 291. Ghezzi lost a chance to tie Revolta by carding a 5 on the par 4 final hole.

Ben Hogan, Fort Worth, Tex., took third with a 292. Horton Smith, Chicago; Earl Fry, Alameda, Cal.; John Bulla, Chicago, and Tony Penna, Dayton, O., tied for fourth position with 293s. Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., shared the 294 bracket with Frank Toronto, Sacramento, low scoring amateur of the tournament.

Vic's Accurate, Anyway.

Ghezzi set one record not appreciated by the principals. One of his shots hit a woman spectator on the nose and another hit a man in the back. Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., playing in the same threesome with Ghezzi, also hit a woman in the gallery. The money winners:

$750—John Revolta, 290. $475—Vic Ghezzi, 291. $350—Ben Hogan, 292. $170—Earl Fry, Horton Smith, Tony Penna, John Bulla, 293. $100—Byron Nelson, 294. $90—Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. RIGGS TRIUMPHS OVER KOVACS IN TENNIS FINAL

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Bobby Riggs of Chicago faltered momentarily but regained his stride and defeated Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal., 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, to win the Surf club tennis tournament today.

Kovacs, who is 18 years old, astonished spectators time and again by slashing back at Riggs and hitting spectacular shots that held the national No. 2 player at a standstill.

Riggs was erratic in the first set and Kovacs had him completely in hand. But the Chicago player came into his own in the second. Playing with precision, he gained the upper hand and kept the lead throughout the match.

Kovacs snapped a return in the third game that caught Riggs off guard and sent him sprawling on the ground in an effort to salvage it. The set was deuced five times. The next also was deuced five times, but Riggs kept up a steady fire that had Kovacs on the run.

Kovacs also lost to Riggs in the Miami Biltmore tournament several weeks ago. He was an upset quarter-final victor over Bryan Grant of Atlanta in the contest ended today.

Platak was not extended during the tournament and in his four matches scored 168 to 42 by opponents, Frank Turk, Marty McElligott, Milt Woodward, and McCarthy. Fred Dillon defaulted to Joe in the second round.

Turk, representing the Joliet Y. M. C. A., defeated Al Culver, 21-10, 21-6, for third place.

Hawks Lose, 7 to 2; Wing Threat Grows

nected in the 58th minute to beat his brother Tiny.

After a scoreless first period, Bill Cowley and Rookie Mel Hill hit for Boston in the second and at the time Nicholson scored the Bruins were leading, 5 to 0, on third period goals by Bobby Bauer, Art Jackson, and Gordon Pettinger. Subsequently Hill got another, and Charley Sands added the final tally with less than two minutes to go.

The Hawks' roll of injured already large enough, acquired another recruit in Art Wiebe, who suffered several torn ligaments in his left shoulder in the second period, and will be out of action for three weeks.

Cowley Scores for Boston.

The Hawks opened the second period without the services of Wiebe, and Levinsky promptly announced his feelings about the loss of his partner by firing two sizzling shots which Thompson was fortunate to halt. The Bruins finally came to, however, and Cowley went down attended by a convoy of mates. Instead of passing to them, however, he tricked Karakas out of position and lined the puck home in 3:45.

The Hawks attempted to respond, but Goldsworthy stole the puck and passed to Rookie Hill, who was in the clear and had little trouble in batting it past the unprotected Karakas in 4:39.

The period reached a climax after 16 minutes when Gottselig gave Referee Ion a few excerpts from the privately printed works of Ivan Skvinsky Skvar, in Russian. An unappreciative fellow, Ion gave Johnny a ten minute misconduct penalty. This brought about the aforesaid avalanche and the sudden departure from the rink of both officials.

Boston Gets Real Tough.

Play was resumed after a delay of 20 minutes. On his return Gottselig adjourned to the penalty box to serve his sentence.

The Hawks then began to press, with the result that the score became 4 to 0 in less than seven minutes of the third period. Schmidt passed to Bauer for the third goal of the night in 3:13, and Jackson broke away from a flurry around the Boston cage and scored unassisted in 6:46.

Touching the ten minute mark, the action became quite rude, with the result that Seibert was given a two minute penalty for spilling young Hill as the latter broke in on Karakas. Before Seibert was freed, he was joined by Hollett, who had a half nelson on Gottselig before he heard the whistle.

Hawks Finally Count.

No sooner were the teams even than Boston's steady driving culminated in the fifth goal. Pettinger crossed the blue line and passed to Sands, who beat Karakas on a low shot in 13:32. The Hawks then scored their first goal of the night, Voss flicking a face off shot to Nicholson, whose drive caught Thompson unawares. The time was 13:49. Hill then produced his second goal of the night on a solo breakaway in 15:30.

The Hawks then decided they wouldn't stand on one goal and finally Thompson beat his brother on a flurry of passes by Romnes and Dahlstrom in 17:12. Sands soon matched this on an unassisted performance 54 seconds later.

IVAR BALLANGRUD CAPTURES WORLD SKATING TITLE

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ivar Ballangrud, Norwegian skater, broke the world record for 10,000 meters today to clinch the individual world ice skating championship in the international tournament here.

His time of 17 minutes 14.4 seconds in the final event was three seconds under the previous mark set by another Norwegian, A. Carlsen, in 1928. The victory gave Ballangrud, who already held the record for 3,000 meters, a total of 1,909.07 points.

He was assured of the world championship after the American skaters were eliminated for failing to compete in the final 10,000 meters.

Both he and his countryman, Oscar Mathisen, were clocked in the identical world record time for the 10,000 meters, but officials caught Ballangrud slightly ahead at the finish.

80,000 Disappointed When Germans Play Soccer Tie

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Germany's national soccer team disappointed a crowd of 80,000 fans in city stadium today by gaining only a 1 to 1 tie with Switzerland in an international match. The Germans had to come from behind to tie the score late in the last half. Szepan kicked in the goal to wipe out the advantage the Swiss team had taken on Aebl's shot late in the first half.

Jim Hull, leading Buckeye scorer, added fourteen points to his record against Iowa and now has sixty-six. Dick Baker, the other forward, has scored forty-five points.

Iowa meets Minnesota in Minneapolis tonight. The teams are tied with two victories and three defeats each. The winner still has an outside chance to share in the title and certainly will remain in the battle for a first division berth.

Yanks Insure Joe Di Maggio for $100,000

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The New York Yankees have insured their young outfield star, Joe Di Maggio, for $100,000, the player disclosed today.

"I took a physical examination while in New York last week," Di Maggio said, adding the policy would protect the world's champions against anything that might happen to him on or off the ball field. The policy did not insure the club, however, against Joe's demand for more money than the $25,000 reputedly offered him for the 1938 season.

SOLDIERS' FIELD SKI MEET PUT OFF TILL SATURDAY

A high wind caused the postponement of the third annual central states ski tournament scheduled for Soldiers' field yesterday afternoon. NATIONAL SPEED SKATING RACES ARE POSTPONED

Soft Ice Cancels Event in Petoskey, Mich.

Petoskey, Mich., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The United States speed skating championship meet scheduled for today was called off this morning because of soft ice. The 200 skaters entered left tonight for their homes.

Definite arrangements as to where the national meet will be held have not been made, but officials plan to hold it within the next two weeks at some other winter resort.

Skating weather Friday was ideal but a thaw set in yesterday causing the postponement from afternoon until night. Warm weather continued throughout the evening and it was decided to hold the program today. Early this morning the meet was canceled despite the promise of colder weather and snow in the afternoon. The snow came, but not the cold wave.

A poll among the skaters determined the decision when the majority insisted they could not stay over.

CLARE LINSTEDT WINS TWICE IN ICE BOAT RACES

Clare Linstedt of the Fox Lake Ice Yacht club won two of the three races held on the lake yesterday. Strong westerly winds drove a fleet of E class iceboats at the best speed so far this season.

In the opening race over the six mile course Yankee Doodle, Linstedt's racer, crossed the finish line first. Milton Stanius' entry, Diamond Lil, was second, followed by Alfred Tomszyk's boat, Pluto. Pluto moved up to the lead during the second race and defeated Yankee Doodle. Diamond Lil placed third, while Whizz, sailed by Mrs. Clare Linstedt, was fourth. The final race was won by Yankee Doodle, followed in order by Pluto, Diamond Lil, and Whizz.

Nagurski Ends His Drill Today for Von Schacht

Bronko Nagurski, Chicago Bears full back and claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship, will finish preparations in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for his bout with Fritz von Schacht, 228 pound native of Germany, in the Coliseum tomorrow.

Nagurski, who has not wrestled in Chicago since he went twenty minutes to a draw with Pat O'Shocker on the Jim McMillen-Joe Stecher card in the Stadium Oct. 25, 1933, started his mat campaign in the spring of 1933 to earn some money while keeping in condition between football seasons.

Bronko Recalls First Opponent.

The 230 pound Bronko, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall, two and a half inches shorter than Von Schacht, made his first ring appearance in Minneapolis against a farmer from near Mason City, Ia. The fellow's name was Tag Taggeson and Nagurski, who is 29 years old, has cause to remember him, for Taggeson landed a blow during the struggle which gave Nagurski a cauliflower ear. It is the only mark Nagurski bears.

His ability to defend himself probably is the reason. When his immense strength is insufficient to break holds, Nagurski relies on tricks taught him by his manager, Tony Stecher, and Toots Mondt.

Von Schacht a Veteran.

Von Schacht, who is making his home in Milwaukee, has been wrestling four years. He has built up a following by his victories in neighborhood clubs in recent weeks.

Loyola Meets Veteran Foe in Centre Game

The Loyola university basketball team, which proved its stamina in a triple overtime victory over George Washington university Friday night, will meet the Centre college quintet from Danville, Ky., in Alumni gymnasium tonight. Centre will start an all-veteran lineup.

Wicky Cooper, Centre's high scoring forward for the last three seasons, was lost to the Colonels a few weeks ago through graduation, and Bill Laird, sophomore, who was expected to fill his place has been declared ineligible.

Forward Leads Team.

The visitors have had a fifty-fifty season, winning four and losing four, but three of these losses have been by one point and the other by seven points. Capt. Maurice Royalty, three year veteran, leads the team from his forward berth. Teaming with him is Tom Alexander, another senior, who excels at ball handling and under the basket play. Paul Coop, 6 feet 1 inch center, and one of the leadng scorers of the south, will start with Dick Stahl and Jim Patton slated for guard duty.

Kautz Goes On and On.

Wibs Kautz, Loyola guard, who has raised his season mark to 166 points in ten games, will play guard, probably with Bill Lynch, senior veteran.

Mike Novak, who scored nineteen points against George Washington, will be at center spot. The Rambler forwards are Bill O'Brien and George Hogan.

CIESARS DEFEAT OSHKOSH FIVE IN TWO OVERTIMES

The Ciesar All-Americans scored a 42 to 39 victory over the Oshkosh All-Stars after two overtime periods in a National Professional League basketball game yesterday at the Hammond Civic Center.

The two teams were tied, 35 to 35, at the end of regulation playing time. In the first minute of the first overtime, Roy Edwards and Pete Preboski sent the All-Stars ahead, 37 to 35, on two free throws, but Johnny Wooden, with only six seconds to play, tied up the game with a field goal.

Edwards put his team ahead, 39 to 37, in the second overtime period with a basket. A field goal by Ed Campion tied the score, however, and Vince McGowan sank a basket and Wooden dropped a free throw to clinch the game for the All-Americans. Score:

ASSAIL LICENSE BILL AS DOOM OF HOME RULE

Manufacturers Call It Burocratic Peril.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers, apprehensive that President Roosevelt might take up the Borah-O'Mahoney bill to place corporations under a federal licensing system, denounced that measure today as providing for an end of "home rule over business."

In a formal statement, the association declared the bill would permit the federal government to put any concern entirely out of business for "the most trivial violations" of the terms of its federal license.

Talks With Senator Borah.

The legislation would be a device even broader than the national industrial recovery act for bringing every small business under the domination of a federal bureau, the statement added.

President Roosevelt discussed the bill recently with Senator Borah [R., Idaho], who afterward refused to disclose the President's attitude but gave no sign that he had been discouraged.

The manufacturers' statement said in part:

"Into this bill is written the power of life and death over all private enterprise.

"It would end our system of state incorporation and make home rule over business a thing of the past.

Tell Scope of Plan.

"The bill is presented as a means for regulating corporations. But the term corporation as defined in the bill includes not only companies big and little and partnerships, but any joint venture or other unincorporated venture. Since the term joint venture refers to a group action, the term unincorporated venture refers also to individual action. The bill covers not only industrial ventures but agricultural as well, including coöperatives and even individual farmers where they compete with licensees.

"The penalties of the proposed measure are more drastic than occur in any other federal statute. They range all the way from substantial fines to imprisonment and to absolute exile from commerce."

Small Wheat Exports Offset Crop Outlook

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The doubtful prospects for the winter wheat crop have failed to boost prices to the extent that might be expected because export sales of American wheat have been disappointingly small. One market influence has tended to cancel the other, and prices have held relatively steady for some time.

Rains in the last ten days in eastern Kansas, Missouri, and parts of Iowa have improved the crop outlook. The condition of the crop in western Kansas, Oklahoma, and other parts of the "dust bowl" is still exceedingly poor and the abandonment of a large part of the seeded acreage in that area is regarded as certain. More dust storms were reported last week in Kansas.

Kansas Conditions Vary.

Kansas has 17,446,000 of the 57,000,000 acres seeded to winter wheat. The condition of 13,000,000 acres in Kansas is below the condition at this time last year, according to crop appraisers. Conditions range from "good to fair" in eastern and central Kansas, the weather bureau reports. The average condition of the crop in Illinois and Missouri is not as favorable as in eastern Kansas.

The uncertainty that surrounds the winter crop prospects has not encouraged speculative buying of wheat futures because it appears likely that the United States will enter the new crop season with a substantial wheat surplus.

It now appears that foreign sales for the season will not exceed 100 million bushels. The export business remains slow, although a pickup in export sales of both wheat and corn was indicated by activity reported at the close of last week.

Holding Companies—(Conclusion).

Since 1900 the holding company has come into wide use in the industrial and utility fields and, to a lesser degree, in the commercial banking field. It has had a renewal of life in the railroad industry.

Not all the great combinations early in the century were affected by holding companies. Many were accomplished by the outright purchase of properties. The biggest consolidation of the era, however, that of the United States Steel corporation, was a holding company combination. Other important holding companies formed from 1900 to 1903 included Eastman Kodak company, International Nickel, American Locomotive, and E. I. du Pont de Nemours company.

A holding company was used to bring about the General Motors combination in 1908. Eight years later, however, the company was reorganized as General Motors corporation and the former subsidiaries were acquired directly. General Motors remains today essentially an operating company, although certain of its operations are carried on through subsidiaries.

Today the holding company is the customary method used to bring about consolidations. There are few companies doing a nation-wide business that escape the classification of holding company. Some, like General Motors, are holding companies only incidentally, but they are exceptional. Most of the big concerns carry on their business largely through subsidiaries.

STEEL PRODUCTION DECLINES; DEMAND CONTINUES SLACK

Continued lack of demand for steel by the important consumer industries resulted in a loss of 2 points in the steel ingot production rate last week, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. Ingot output was estimated at 31 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The one real hope for substantial buying in the next few weeks lies in the shipbuilding industry, the trade journal said. Placing of orders for several tankers and distribution of contracts for the twelve cargo ships on which the maritime commission opened bids last week is expected shortly.

Pig iron output in January totaled 1,439,191 tons, compared with 1,503,474 tons in December and 3,219,741 tons produced in January, 1937. This was the lowest January output since 1934.

Steel's composite of scrap prices dipped 7 cents last week to $13.83 a ton, the result of a drop of 50 cents on the heavier grades in Chicago.

FHA ISSUES NEW RULES AIMED TO SPUR BUILDING

Acts Under Amended Housing Act.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Federal Housing administration promulgated rules today intended to stimulate construction of multifamily and group housing projects.

The rules were issued under the housing law amendment passed by congress and signed by President Roosevelt last week.

One section of the new legislation is designed to promote building of large scale projects covered by mortgages up to $5,000,000. Another is to encourage building of smaller developments covered by mortgages from $16,000 to $200,000.

Include One Family Houses.

The new FHA regulations provide for partial federal insurance of mortgages not only on multifamily structures but also on developments consisting of single family houses.

Under these regulations, officials said, it will be possible for developers to obtain blanket mortgage financing, including funds adv

MOST OF STATES INCREASE CASH INCOME IN 1937

Only Five Show Smaller Returns than in 1936.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The national industrial conference board, a research organization supported by large industrial concerns, reported today its estimated cash income in 1937 exceeded that of 1936 in every state except five.

Increases ranged up to 38.0 per cent in Arizona, where the total accountable income was $287,000,000, compared with $208,000,000 in 1936. Seven other states showed increases of more than 10 per cent. They were Idaho with income of $234,000,000, against $203,000,000; Utah, $247,000,000, against $215,000,000; Nevada, $82,000,000, against $73,000,000; Texas, $2,506,000,000, against $2,247,000,000; Maryland, $999,000,000, against $901,000,000; Delaware, $213,000,000, against $193,000,000, and Illinois, $4,935,000,000, against $4,466,000,000.

Industrial States Fare Best.

The board's estimates showed more than half of the total income of the country was received in the eight highly industrialized states forming the middle Atlantic and east north central region.

As usual, New York led the list with income of $10,440,000,000, against $10,112,000,000 the year before. Pennsylvania was second with $5,912,000,000, against $5,548,000,000. Illinois was third.

Income of Other States.

Other states showing total income of more than $1,000,000,000 were: Michigan, $2,481,000,000, compared with $2,605,000,000 in 1936; Massachusetts, $2,710,000,000, against $2,646,000,000; Connecticut, $1,324,000,000, against $1,215,000,000; New Jersey, $2,712,000,000, against $2,498,000,000; Indiana, $1,820,000,000, against $1,675,000,000; Wisconsin, $1,769,000,000, against $1,623,000,000; Minnesota, $1,360,000,000, against $1,305,000,000; Iowa, $1,086,000,000, against $1,058,000,000; Missouri, $1,705,000,000, against $1,669,000,000, and North Carolina, $1,033,000,000, against $968,000,000.
